

Huge Bombers, Bombsights Go To British Isles

20 'Flying Fortresses'
May be Next U. S. Aid
To be Sent to London

Washington —(AP)— Huge long range bombers and bombsights to go with them made up a new installment today in the program of aid to Britain.

The army announced that 26 four-motor Consolidated bombers were being made available for British purchase, disclosed that the Sperry bombsight had been released, and indicated that 20 "flying fortresses" might be the next installment of aerial assistance.

The Consolidated bombers, credited with a 3,000 mile range, would be capable of carrying a full bomb load to almost any existing target area in Europe. From bases in the British Isles, they could strike at any objective within 1,500 miles and then return. Or they could operate on even longer missions by shuttling between airbases in England and British bases in the Mediterranean theater.

The release of these bombers was made known by General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, at a press conference yesterday. He announced that the 26 bombers originally ordered by the army from the Consolidated Aircraft company at San Diego, Calif., were being made available for purchase by the British as fast as they came off the production line.

Bombsight Available
It was his understanding, he said, that the first of these ships was delivered last Saturday and that the others would be turned over at a steadily increasing rate between now and March 1.

Marshall revealed at the same time that the army already had made available to the British the Sperry bombsight — a mechanism used by the United States Air corps before the present jealously guarded Norden bombsight replaced it. Some military sources describe the Sperry sight as very efficient equipment, although it does not match the high efficiency of the newer Norden sight.

Marshall said flatly that no bombers released for British purchase would have the Norden sight, which has been developed by the navy and subsequently adopted by both branches of the armed services.

The chief of staff then announced that the negotiations were under way for the release to the British of 20 B-17C bombers—the long distance "flying fortresses" made by the Boeing Aircraft Corporation of Seattle, Wash.

Speed Air Objective
Asked if these ships would be already delivered to the United States army or others scheduled for delivery in the near future, he said that would depend upon whether it was faster to substitute the Sperry for the secret Norden bombsight in existing planes or in machines still on the production line.

In his announcement that the British were being given priority on first deliveries of B-24 bombers, the four-engined ships just beginning to come from the Consolidated Aircraft plant, General Marshall said that the United States was receiving in return sufficient engines to equip 41 of the Boeing B-17C "flying fortresses."

The British ordered these engines from an American plant early in the war, he explained. Unless the army obtained them, he said, it would have no power plants for the 41 "flying fortresses" recently delivered without engines or to be delivered before Jan. 1.

From the viewpoint of the United States, General Marshall said, the primary purpose of releasing the "flying fortresses" was to obtain an "actual service test" of the B-17C. In addition, he added, this government would receive "at least the equivalent of these planes."

Negotiators Fail to Iron Out Dispute at Big Aircraft Plant

Downey, Calif. —(AP)— Government negotiators, striving to iron out a labor dispute which has tied up the big Vultee aircraft plant—and $84,000,000 in military contracts — for nearly a week, still were unsuccessful today.

One of the government representatives, N. Arnold Tolson, assistant to Defense Commission Labor Coordinator Sidney Hillman, left for Washington—but without any announcement regarding progress of the discussions. L. W. Michener, west coast head of the striking union, the CIO National Automobile Workers, headed for Atlantic City and the CIO's national convention.

Major Sidney Simpson, representing the war department, last night adjourned today a labor-management parley which has been under way since Monday noon with only occasional respites. "No comment" was the major's only statement as he emerged from the meeting.

The union wants an increase from 50 cents to 75 cents an hour in the minimum base pay. The company has offered a boost to 55 cents for workers after three months' service and 60 cents after six months.

British Bombers Raid Nazi Port

Announce 'Large Scale'
Aerial Attack Upon
Duisburg-Ruhrort

London —(AP)— British bombers hammered the German inland port of Duisburg-Ruhrort in "a large-scale attack" last night, the air ministry announced today.

Damage was done to shipping and warehouses, it said, "and many fires and explosions occurred."

Other British air squadrons attacked German air bases and the "invasion ports" of Ostend, Cherbourg, Dunkerque and Lorient, the communiqué said.

It acknowledged that one British plane was missing.

Berlin —(AP)— German speedboats have sunk British war vessels, including six destroyers and two submarines, with a total tonnage of 11,300 since the beginning of the war, the high command claimed today.

In addition, a communiqué said, the speedboats have destroyed 212,000 tons of merchant shipping.

"Now for the first time," the high command said, "one German speedboat was lost in a fight with several English destroyers during an operation against the English east coast."

The British reported that such a torpedo craft was sunk Tuesday night by light naval forces in the North sea.

Attributing the loss of "a great number of enemy warships" to the German speedboats, the communiqué reported that the boats had had "numerous fights with superior British forces."

Informed sources added, meanwhile, that German fliers had dropped more than 100,000 kilograms (221,000 pounds) of bombs on Birmingham and 30,000 kilograms (66,300 pounds) in raids last night, and also attacked Bristol, Liverpool, Southampton and southeastern coastal harbors.

Jobs Nation's First Line of Defense, Madison Pastor Says

Milwaukee —(AP)— The Rev. L. B. Mosely, pastor of the First Baptist church of Madison, told the Women's Court and Civic conference yesterday that the nation's first line of defense should be jobs for young and old.

"Our No. 1 job should include not only employment, but health, accident, unemployment and old age insurance, and all the social security measures to which a citizenry has a right," Dr. Mosely went on. "We can finance things for human welfare just as we can finance programs based on fear. To fail in the realm of human welfare is to jeopardize democracy and to undermine morale."

'Bottom Fell Out of Glass,' Mate of Wrecked Boat Says

Midland, Ont. —(AP)— "The bottom fell out of the glass," Captain R. A. Simpell of Midland wrote in his log to tell the story of the storm over Lake Michigan the night of Nov. 11-12. He made the log public last night.

Simpell was first mate on the Canadian freighter, Novadoc which went aground near Ludington, Mich., with loss of two men.

He wrote that the Novadoc had been running at half speed in the storm "a short while when he met the Anna C. Minch coming from the other direction. . . . Making good weather of it."

The Anna C. Minch, another Canadian freighter foundered and the crew of 21 was lost with the ship. "The seas were mountains high" and the storm had increased to a

Berlin —(AP)— General Ion Antonescu, premier of Rumania, arrived in Germany today, bringing his country to the fore as the probable next recruit for the expanding axis alliance.

Accompanied by his foreign minister, Prince Costin Sturza, and the German minister to Rumania, Wilhelm Fabricius, the Rumanian premier was greeted at the Austrian border town of Bruck by the German chief of protocol, Baron Alexander von Doernberg, and other high reich officials.

As Antonescu reached Germany, authorized German sources observed that if the United States were to go to war against any one of the axis powers, not only Hungary, which joined the alliance yesterday, but all other countries which may yet join automatically will be at war with America. Also those countries would find themselves at war with England, it was said.

One authorized commentator added that adherence to the pact automatically means that the axis powers can move troops through the adhering country.

Stresses Solidarity
This source said, however, that emphasis is to be laid, not on the military aspects of the alliance, but on the moral solidarity of European nations which, he said, resent British interference on the continent.

Since Antonescu recently conferred in Rome with Italian Premier Mussolini, observers here presumed that the groundwork already has been prepared for Rumania to follow Hungary's footsteps in joining the 10-year military, political and economic compact with Germany, Italy and Japan.

Vienna, once proud capital of Nazi annexed Austria and scene of yesterday's addition to Hungary to the now four-power pact, again became just another German provincial city as the array of diplomats departed.

Wrist Watch Links Suspect With Holdup

Woman Identifies
One of Three Held
In Chicago Robbery

Milwaukee —(AP)— Miss Emiline Doherty, 26, identified one of three men held in Chicago yesterday in connection with the $37,684 holdup of the O. Axt wholesale importing firm here.

Miss Doherty identified the man by a wrist watch which he wore. Police said she had previously described it to them.

In addition, August Axt, proprietor of the firm, and Conrad Biebler, present at the robbery, pointed out the three men, the police reported.

Chicago police said that a former jewelry salesman, Ernest Porter, of Chicago, had confessed the crime and named two accomplices. The police said that Porter was willing to waive extradition and act as a state witness.

Deny Accusation
The police said that Porter named as his accomplices, Earl Herbert and Frank Black, of Chicago, former convicts. Herbert served a sentence for the murder of a railroad detective, and Black was on parole from a robbery sentence, the authorities said. Both denied any connection with the holdup.

Black was identified by Miss Doherty.

Bond was fixed at $20,000 in the Chicago felony court yesterday. The men will be arraigned Friday morning. The Illinois state's attorney will ask two week's continuance to permit officials to prepare the extradition papers.

The Axt holdup occurred Oct. 3, three men invading the firm's offices in a downtown store, trussing up the occupants and fleeing with $37,680 in diamonds and $164 in cash.

Goldendale, Wash. —(AP)— Brake-men Ed Barnard invited a hobo, riding on top of a boxcar, into the warm caboose.

Despite the wind and near-freezing weather, the roof-rider replied: "No thanks, I've got my radio rigged up here. It won't work inside."

3 Home Guard Units Planned

Heil and Immell Map
Out Proposals for Badger Regiments

Milwaukee —(AP)— Governor Julius Heil announced last night that he and Brigadier General Ralph Immell, Wisconsin adjutant general, had completed plans for organizing three regiments of home guards in Wisconsin.

The home guards, men over 35 years of age, will replace the state national guardsmen who have been called to federal service in Louisiana. About 3,000 men will form the new units. One regiment will be stationed in Milwaukee and the other two in strategic rail, water and industrial areas throughout the state.

Heil said that actual organization work would have to wait until war department approval had been obtained for use of armories.

General Immell said that equipment and uniforms probably would form out-dated supplies not being used by the regular army.

Heil said that an organized force was necessary in event of crisis such as disasters or disorders of a major nature.

26,700 Guardsmen Summoned by FDR

Washington —(AP)— The war department announced that approximately 26,700 additional national guard troops have been called into active federal service for a year under orders signed by President Roosevelt.

The fourth increment, ordered to duty next Monday, included the 106th cavalry (horse-mechanized), Illinois, to Camp Livingston, La., and the 192nd Tank battalion, Wisconsin, Illinois, Ohio and Kentucky, to Ft. Knox, Ky.

32 States Give Thanks Today for Peace on Western Hemisphere

Under roofs unmenaced by bombers and at dinners prepared without ration cards, Americans in 32 states today returned fervent thanks for a nation at peace.

The rest of the nation will celebrate Thanksgiving a week from today, but regardless of date both observances had the traditional spirit of the day in common.

President Roosevelt, like millions of other citizens, fell in with the mellowed custom of a family holiday—church services, a quiet home dinner, and hours of friendly talk. Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt visited at Hyde Park, N. Y., with the president's mother, Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt.

Churches held special Thanksgiving services for communicants seeking spiritual reassurance in a world at war. The president's proclamation had called on Americans to "give thanks for our preservation" in a year which saw "calamity and sorrow" fall upon other nations.

Injuries Fatal to Michigan Educator

Detroit —(AP)— Dr. John F. Thomas, 66, deputy Detroit superintendent of schools and president of the Michigan Education association, died yesterday of injuries suffered Tuesday in an automobile accident.

Dr. Thomas, a graduate of the University of Michigan, became budget director of Detroit schools in 1914. In 1915 he was appointed assistant superintendent of schools in charge of finance.

A native of Parker City, Pa., Dr. Thomas was superintendent of schools at Lowell and Hastings in Michigan before coming here in 1908 as principal of the old Washington Normal school. He became president of the Michigan Education association last April.

Also Reported to be Marching Rapidly on Base at Argirocastro

Athens —(AP)— Greek forces were reported to have reached the outskirts of the besieged Italian base city of Koritza in Albania this morning.

At the same time, in the coastal sector of the fighting zone, Greek columns were said to be marching rapidly on another important Italian base, Argirocastro, also in Albania.

Italian resistance in that zone was reported to have collapsed almost totally.

Latest information from the front said the Greeks were within six miles of Argirocastro, which is said to rank equally with Koritza in strategic value.

It was on these two cities that the Italians had based their drive into Greece. Huge stores of war materials had been assembled in both cities.

Abandoning City
A thrust through the center of the Italian lines, putting the fascist forces to hasty flight at a point six miles within Albania, was the previous high spot of Greek successes reported today all along the 100-mile battlefield from the Ionian sea to Koritza.

Observers in the Koritza sector reported that the Italians were abandoning the city and all outlying

Voices Need to Get At Roots of Crime

Fond du Lac —(AP)— Dr. Morris G. Caldwell, director of the state division of corrections, told welfare workers here yesterday that "there is a crying need" to get at the roots of crime in Wisconsin.

Dr. Caldwell launched a survey of juvenile delinquency in Fond du Lac, Sheboygan and Winnebago counties which is part of a statewide project, already completed in 46 counties.

"We have already found 5,000 potential juvenile delinquents in the state," he said. "The program of prevention and treatment should be handled in the local community—not in our expensive penal institutions."

Four Iowa Residents Killed in Accident

Wells, Minn. —(AP)— Four Iowans were killed almost instantly and another injured when a car and a truck collided eight miles south of here on Highway 14 last night.

Rome —(AP)— The capture of the new vice commander of the British air forces in the middle east, Air Marshal Owen Tudor Boyd, was announced today by the Italian high command.

Tudor, former commander of the British balloon barrage forces, and six other men, including four officers, were captured in Sicily when a British Wellington plane made a forced landing, its communiqué said.

He was reported enroute from England to take over the post when his plane went down.

(Air Vice Marshal Boyd, a World War veteran, joined the Royal Air Force in 1916 after serving in the Indian army. He was director of air ministry personnel services from 1936 to 1938.)

Fascist troops smashed repeated Greek attacks along the Albanian front, particularly in the Koritza sector, the daily communiqué said.

The Italians said seven British planes were shot down in flames in an air battle over Egypt. The high command acknowledged the loss of four planes in bombing activities in Greece, three in the Egyptian battle and another in bombing activities in East Africa.

Italian planes, it reported also, bombed military objectives on Malta.

London —(AP)— The air ministry said today that Air Marshal Owen Tudor Boyd was missing but that further details were unavailable.

Boyd, who was promoted to the post of air marshal Nov. 8, was appointed deputy to the chief officer in the middle east command in sweeping changes in the Royal Air Force announced Nov. 17.

Defends Leopold In His Surrender

New York —(AP)— John Cudahy, United States ambassador to Belgium, says King Leopold ordered the capitulation of his forces before the German army because of a situation for which there was no alternative.

For five days before the surrender, Cudahy said in a nationwide broadcast last night, both the British and French general staffs had been kept fully informed and knew that the Belgian army had no other course.

"There comes a time when one human being charged with the responsibility of the lives of many others has no other honorable course but surrender," Cudahy said. "And in the late afternoon of May 27 the King of the Belgians realized, as Robert E. Lee realized at Appomattox, that such a time had come."

The envoy described the Belgians as conducting a lone fight toward the end with the British retreating to Dunkerque and the French "scattered" to the south.

APPOINTED — Gov. Luren B. Dickinson of Michigan has announced the appointment of Mrs. Matilda Dodge Wilson (above), widow of one of the founders of the motor empire, to the office of lieutenant governor, but the state attorney general questioned the legality of the appointment.

Included in the budget is $117,995.40 for highway department expenses with $330,515.65 for other county expenses. The budget includes the first payment of $38,000 and interest of $7,320 for the retirement of courthouse bonds.

The first two daylight raids on London were of short duration.

A southeast England village turned out en masse to help firemen control fires caused last night by hundreds of incendiary bombs dropped by Nazi raiders.

Terrific anti-aircraft fire was reported to have taken the sting out of the Nazis' second successive night of "all out" raiding on Britain's vital midlands and the government

Reduction Of $57,132 From 1940

A reduction of $57,132.37 from 1940 is shown in Outagamie county's 1941 tax levy of $511,060.94 according to the budget adopted by the county board as the November session ended yesterday afternoon. Expenditures for the year are estimated at $1,048,511.05 in the budget.

The present healthy condition of county finances is a factor in the lower levy for 1941. Against the outlay of $1,048,511.05 are anticipated revenues of $516,175.11 and $21,275 from the general fund. It was possible to apply the latter amount against the expenditures because there still is a sufficient amount in the general fund to carry on the county business until the end of the year. Pusch, auditor of the E. A. Dettman firm, explained to the supervisors.

Included in the budget is $117,995.40 for highway department expenses with $330,515.65 for other county expenses. The budget includes the first payment of $38,000 and interest of $7,320 for the retirement of courthouse bonds.

Salary Committee
The special study of the county salary setup, ordered by the board yesterday morning, will be made by a committee of supervisors elected at the afternoon meeting. The salary committee also will recommend the salary schedule each year instead of the executive committee which handled the work in the past. The resolution setting up the special committee brought out that the executive committee already was burdened with enough work. Named to the committee were Supervisors Ben Shimek, Appleton; William Brown, Hortonville; George Wichman, Appleton; Walter Blake, Cicero; and Ferdinand Radtke, Appleton.

Raymond P. Dohr, district attorney, who will leave office Jan. 1, was presented with a leather traveling bag by members of the board for his "faithful and generous services which were given far beyond the requirements of the law."

Special Charges
State special charges upon the county are $30,834.48. The county school tax is $70,585. Other county taxes include $5,000 for the county superintendent of schools, $5,000 for soldiers and sailors relief, $1,495.40 bridge aids and all other county taxes $398,

Public Entitled To Know Certain Defense Facts

Hush-Hush Maneuver Can be Used to Cover Delay, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Senator Byrd's demand that the congress be given the facts about the progress of the defense program raises a point that has been obscured due to the election campaign.

A demonstration of the policy-making officials in the policy-making departments have been naturally sensitive to requests for information on the theory that what was revealed might be used against them. Army and navy officials have been reticent for fear of antagonizing the policy-making officials. As a consequence senators who have written to the war and navy departments for simple pieces of data have been refused or have been given replies which were marked "confidential" although they contained information that could readily be made public.

It is not a difficult thing to draw the line between military information and that to which the public is entitled. The hush-hush maneuver can easily be used to cloak unnecessary secrecy and to cover up inefficiency and delay. Sometimes when it is a choice between disclosure of something that looks like a piece of military information and something that might bring about a public benefit, the senators and representatives ought to be the judges in the final analysis of what should be issued. If the data are so secret that they ought not to be disclosed to anyone then it is not likely that anybody in the war or navy departments would transmit them to congress in the first instance.

Edited To Know
What is sought now is some factual knowledge of the progress of the defense machine unhampered by vague phrases about contracts let or cleared or awarded. The public is entitled to know just what the rate of production of airplanes is and what is being done about the essential weapons of war. If the rate is too slow, the people will insist on corrective measures and responsibilities for delay will be fixed.

Unfortunately very few senators have busied themselves with the details of the defense program. Mr. Byrd of Virginia is one of the few who has specialized on the subject. He can be of much help in compelling efficiency for he is one of the ablest men in the senate. His contribution to the cause of good government has just been recognized by the state of Virginia, for while the state is overwhelmingly Democratic and gave Mr. Roosevelt a substantial plurality, Senator Byrd was reelected notwithstanding his well-known opposition to the third term idea. He had no candidate against him.

It is a disappointing thing to find so few Republican senators specializing in defense problems. Here and there are some who have shown an interest in one phase or another, but none has taken the defense program piece by piece and subjected it to public analysis. Perhaps now that the campaign is over, this can be done.

Official Records
One of the major difficulties, of course, is that members of congress do not have access to the official records. They hear various things from constituents, but cannot verify them. Efforts to get at the facts are usually met by a strategy that throws up a smoke screen. This is one reason why Mr. Byrd's resolution to create a committee on national defense with power to subpoena records is worthy of national attention. A committee composed of both Republicans and Democrats would hardly be turned down in its requests for data.

During the last World War, the military affairs committees of both houses were active. The late Senator Chamberlain, Democrat, of Oregon, kept almost continuous hearings going and while what he did in this respect was considered somewhat of an annoyance by the war department, it turned out in the end to be beneficial and led to the reorganization of the whole set-up early in 1918.

What is needed today is some check by the senate and house on defense operations. Heretofore this has been confined to testimony given when appropriation bills are pending, but it appears that virtually all the money needed for the next year has been authorized. Hence interest focuses now on how the job is being done currently and this is something that merits the most painstaking examination, not in any partisan sense, but in the interest of the young men who are being sent from their jobs and their homes under the draft law.

Politics is over for awhile and efficiency in the defense machine is the paramount consideration, but it cannot be achieved unless senators and representatives begin to demand more information from the executive agencies in surveying the law.

Congressman Cautious About Merger Plan

Washington—(U)—Representative Hull (P-Wis.) said last night it was "much too early to even discuss" proposed organization of one party of liberal Democrats and Progressives under the banner of President Roosevelt.

Commenting on discussions of Democratic leaders looking toward restoration of the two-party system in Wisconsin, Hull declared he was not in favor of any after-election program at this time looking ahead two years.

"No one knows what the situation will be then," he declared.

Representative Gehrmann (P-Wis.) said a demand for such action was something that should be considered when it came "from the people" and that he did not want either to encourage or discourage such a movement.

He said he would not care to make a decision on the matter unless he were in Wisconsin to consider the matter with others.

War Situation Today Axis Trying to Clear Road To Turk and Greek Border

Rumania's premier, General Ion Antonescu, and Foreign Minister Prince Costin Sturza, arrived in Germany today, strengthening the current belief that Rumania, already dominated by the nazis, is about to join the axis powers.

In Berlin the German high command asserted that German speedboats since the start of the war have sunk six British destroyers and two submarines and other war vessels, totalling in all 11,300 tons, and also 212,000 tons of merchant shipping.

The Italian high command announced the capture of Britain's new vice commander of the air forces in the middle east. Air Marshal Owen Tudor Boyd, and six other men, four of them officers, who made a forced landing in Sicily en route to the near east, British officials merely acknowledged that Boyd was missing.

Adolf Hitler, Field Marshal General Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German high command, and Joachim von Ribbentrop, Nazi foreign minister, left Vienna last night and presumably were to see Antonescu and Prince Sturza in Germany.

General Ion Antonescu, Rumania's dictator, traveled to Berlin today and observers believed his journey meant that Rumania was due to become the next member of the enlarging totalitarian axis.

Antonescu has just had conversations with Premier Mussolini at the groundwork was laid for Rumania to follow Hungary into a 10-year military, political and economic pact with Germany, Italy and Japan.

This diplomatic activity on the part of the axis was seen as aimed at Britain—by forming an axis highway to the borders of Greece and Turkey, possibly for a thrust at the near eastern oil fields and the Suez canal.

In Greece, meanwhile, Greek troops were reported to have driven a wedge through the center of the Italian lines, forcing the invading fascists into hasty flight six miles within the Albanian border.

A spokesman for the Athens government said the Italians were retreating so hurriedly that the Greeks found it impossible to keep up. The break-through, he said, occurred at Mortani, Albania, northwest of Koritza, Greece.

The Greeks also were said to be pressing steadily against the Italian base at Koritza, Albania, and progress was reported, without details, on the southern front, near the sea.

The Germans continued their unrelenting air war on Britain, concentrating for the second straight night on the industrial midlands, but fierce anti-aircraft fire was reported to have taken the edge off the assault and the British described the night's attacks as "intermittent and on a minor scale."

Swarms of raiders roared over an east midlands town but were reported to have been driven off by ground guns. A British communiqué said "a number of people were killed and injured" in the midlands but attacks on other parts of England, including London, were labeled "generally ineffective."

London had an all night raid alarm, but there were long periods without any air activity.

Nazi planes returned to the attack on London this morning, defying a channel gale and low visibility.

On the offensive side the British said the R. A. F. last night attacked German-occupied ports of Ostend, Cherbourg, Lorient and Dunkerque, the inland port of Duisburg-Ruhrort, and several enemy airbases.

Informed German sources said the nazis had dropped 100,000 kilograms (220,000 pounds) of bombs on Birmingham Tuesday night and had attacked Bristol, Liverpool, Southampton and southeastern coastal harbors.

Thanksgiving For 32 States

factory assembly lines; ships of a formidable fleet observed the day at sea, and citizen soldiers feasted in turkey in new army mess halls still redolent of fresh saved lumber.

The 16 states which decided to defer their official Thanksgiving celebrations until next Thursday were Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Arkansas, Florida, North Carolina, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Kansas, Iowa, South Dakota, Pennsylvania and Nevada.

Football game and other sports events drew crowds in many communities, and favorable weather conditions were expected to result in heavy holiday traffic. Safety directors warned against careless driving on clogged highways.

The holiday got a touch of Pan-American good will in an announcement from Venezuela that an inter-American society there would broadcast a Thanksgiving greeting to the United States tonight. And in Washington a pan-American religious service was held.

A trans-Atlantic radio hookup was arranged between New York and London to permit three American Boy Scouts to exchange greetings with English members of the organization. In many cities, English child refugees enjoyed their first Thanksgiving dinners in America.

Christmas greenery and lights go up in many shopping centers tomorrow, since merchants accept Thanksgiving day as marking the start of the holiday shopping season.

Thinks Hitler Wanted Midlands for Germany

BY FRED VANDERSCHMIDT

New York—(U)—It is not coincidence that Ernest Bevin, the man to whom yesterday England looked with trust and hope, chose to outline the British government's war aim of social security on the very day that Coventry buried its bomb dead in a long and ugly gash in the earth and when the other cities of the midlands searched for new dead in the bomb-made rubble.

"Things can never be as they were . . . the old age has passed," said the minister of labor, bluntly. This man of toil was talking to the midlands, sending to countless bleak little workers' villas a message of hope in a black hour for faith and morale. Not after the war, but now, he said, the nation's whole economic life must be devoted to the goal of security for "the community as a whole."

The midlands is the fortress of England, not merely the fortress of her industry, but the staunch heart of the nation's spirit.

England of Old
Here is the Merrie England of old: all the way from Banbury Cross to Nottingham, this land of the Domesday book, of civil war, of weavers and dyers, of "Coventry blue," of piping hot buns and cool, brown ale and the stories of Mother Goose.

Here, also, is grim and grinding poverty and vast industrial wealth, the dole and the lord lieutenant. It is amazing that the Germans have not descended with all their force on these towns before, but instead have beat with their airborne rage at London. There are more vital military objectives to the square foot in Birmingham or even Coventry than there are to the square mile in London. There is a vastly more vulnerable morale for the breaking. This is not a country of shopkeepers, this midlands. It is a country of workers and their small and dingy homes.

These towns do not have the defenses of London. Here there are no deep shelters . . . The government said they would cost too much and take too much time to build. There are, indeed, no deep subways such as hide London's millions of poor from the fury of the Luftwaffe by night.

The midlands cities are crowded, compact; London sprawls through park and parish. The midlands worker lives close to his lathe. There are 12,503 acres in the city of Coventry, and some 200,000 people live there, or did live there. There are 51,147 acres for the million souls of Birmingham to share amongst them. Greater London has 443,455 acres and millions have left its precincts for the duration of the war.

The airplane factories, the motor plants, the metal foundries, the arms works, rub shoulders in the midlands cities; London was stripped of most of its forges of war long ago.

There are two explanations for the belated German attack on the midlands and the vicious siege of London: One, that Britain made its greatest city a successful lure; second, that Hitler wanted to save England's industry, the nation's greatest prize, for himself, so long as his chances of invasion seemed successful. The second carries the most logic.

London's morale has not cracked. The people there are now soldiers of the line. The midlands have yet to withstand this test.

For Hitler's motive behind these bombings is not only the damage he can do to the war industries of England or to the supplies which are flowing from America. He counts equally upon the desperation wrought by the lost lives of loved ones, to tumbled homes and of fading hope to bring this courageous kingdom to its knees.

From the performance the Red and White gave last night, they will not be a squad to be brushed off lightly by title aspirants. Sparked by Harold Pies, 4-year veteran, and backed up by John Sullivan, a junior, the quint held a safe margin over the visitors throughout the contest. Both sides substituted often.

Green Bay lost all its veterans last year, too, which might account for the better showing of Coach Isaacson's boys but the visitors showed an accurate eye in action and handled themselves and the ball well.

Pies and Sullivan shared scoring honors for New London with four buckets apiece. Floyd Watkins scored the only other marker. It was the first score of the game and he popped it from under the hoop after four minutes of preliminary scrimmaging.

The visitors were limited to three baskets, scoring six out of eight free throws. The locals were worse at the free throw line, missing seven in eight.

Marine Corps Officer Accepting Enlistments

John S. Fuller, Marine corps recruiting officer stationed at Green Bay, reported today there are still "plenty of vacancies for men who wish to join the ranks of the Marine corps."

Fuller pointed out that men between the ages of 18 and 30 years, with at least one year of high school or its equivalent, are eligible. Candidates cannot be less than five feet four inches or more than six feet two inches in height. If a man is found qualified, he will be sent to Chicago for his final examination and enlistment. After enlistment in Chicago, he is transferred to San Diego, Calif., for 10 weeks of training.

tors will get a more thorough try-out against Appleton High school here. They will hold one scrimmage during the Thanksgiving recess at 10 o'clock Friday morning with G. M. Charlesworth in charge during Isaacson's absence.

Louisiana and the Fifty Destroyers

During the campaign the President's reference to the Louisiana Purchase in relation to the deal that gave Great Britain 50 of our destroyers was considerably distorted.

Partisans of the President spread over the country the impression that President Jefferson acted about the same as President Roosevelt, that is, closed the deal and then told congress about it. Of course, he did no such thing.

Jefferson feared that Napoleon, owner and master of Louisiana, might seriously hurt us in either of two ways, by choking off our river commerce on the Mississippi or by planting hostile expeditions to the south of us.

But Jefferson was very doubtful whether under the constitution our nation had any right to buy territory. In spite of this doubt, and not being sure of his ground, he instructed our minister to Paris to negotiate with Napoleon, who always needed funds, and see if he could purchase New Orleans and a part of West Florida. He little dreamed that he might buy the entire Louisiana territory.

It so happened that some of Napoleon's adventures in the West Indies had been unfortunate and the emperor of the French turned suddenly sour against trans-Atlantic journeys. The historian says that no one in the world was so surprised as Jefferson when Napoleon offered to sell all his possessions to the south of us on this continent.

And while Jefferson approved this piece of business which was to be a fine insurance policy for our people he never for a moment attempted to carry it through without ratification by the senate. The whole question in his mind was whether he and the senate together had authority to make the purchase. He never would have thought of trying to do it alone.

And yet there is a comparison to Mr. Roosevelt's acts to be found in the Louisiana purchase. The comparison is not to Jefferson but to Bonaparte who sold his nation's provinces and conducted its affairs of his own sweet will.

Our Natural Trade

The National Foreign Trade Council has released an informative report on American export trade to South and Central America during the first year of the European war. It reveals that our exports to all countries to the south of us increased more than 42 per cent as compared to the previous year.

This report should be digested along with that of the American Tariff League whose figures reveal that even before the European war commenced this country was shipping to Latin America 34 per cent of all its imports, continental Europe provided another 34 per cent, Great Britain 13 per cent, and the rest scattering.

It is obvious that American trade in South and Central America can be greatly increased and extended during periods of peace if it can be so extended under the necessities of war conditions. But it cannot be taken hit or miss. International rights, privileges, and even feelings must be handled with care and justice. America's great handicap in the past has arisen from its changing personnel, the appointment of tired business men who contributed political funds to diplomatic posts and their conception of their duties as a glorious holiday.

This matter of international trade, all political parties in America agree, is of great importance to the regularity with which we run our own widespread industrial machine. Carrying it to the highest point of benefit both for ourselves and the Latin Americans involves patient work and extremely careful planning.

When this war is ended let us have a system prepared with which to carry on in the future. Let us, above all things, avoid the disastrous orgy of the twenties.

Cheese and Christmas

Again the Wisconsin cheese industry and the state department of agriculture and markets are carrying on a Christmas cheese sales campaign, an attempt to popularize the biggest agricultural industry in Wisconsin nationally by advertising the alluringly packaged and tasty cheese morsels as Christmas gifts.

The importance of that program, successful as it has been in the last two or three Christmas seasons, lies not in the fact that it will sell an additional million pounds of Wisconsin cheese factories' products. This volume will scarcely equal one day's production of the huge cheese producing plant that has grown up in Wisconsin.

The significance and the value of the promotion program lies in the fact that through it many new customers are introduced to the attractions of the state's foremost food product. The gift packages will go to homes in Maine and Florida, Oregon and Louisiana, where it will be a novelty on family tables. It will be a sample-salesman, a potential introduction of a new market.

That such promotion efforts are worthy is strikingly shown by the increase in per capita consumption of cheese in recent years. That such efforts must be continued is shown by constantly increasing dairy production. Some pessimists to the contrary, the basic wealth of Wisconsin for decades to come will be the dairy cow and her productive udder.

The rise in per capita consumption of cheese during the very years that consumption of other food staples—meat, potatoes, flour—has declined—shows the increasing acceptance of our No. 1 product in the national diet. It is to the interest of the whole state to keep the trend going. The Christmas cheese program offers a way for all of us to help.

Get your shoulder to the wheel in a rational, dignified, practical cause.

One Hundredth Anniversary Of William Graham Sumner

A man by the name of William Graham Sumner was born just a little over 100 years ago. He was a great student and a writer.

In 1879 he wrote "Commercial Crises" in which he said:

"When all the fine phrases are stripped away it appears that the state is only a group of men with human interests, passions and desires or, worse yet, the state is only an obscure clerk hidden in some corner of a governmental bureau. In either case the assumption of high wisdom and virtue is proved false."

In 1894 Mr. Sumner produced a work entitled, "The Absurd Effort to Make the World Over" and in that treatise he declared his conclusion after viewing the efforts of many seelers:

"In any socialistic state there will be one set of positions which will offer chances of wealth beyond the wildest dreams of avarice; viz, on the governing committees. Then there will be rich men whose wealth will indeed be a menace to social interests, and instead of industrial peace there will be such war as no one has dreamed of yet: the war between the political ins and outs—that is, between those who are on the committee and those who want to get on it."

We had some good thinkers in the past and we had some butterflies. Despite the fact that our grandfathers were not as well educated as they seemed to have known butterflies better.

Defeatism

In 1929 there was held one of those conferences of the French Academy which passed upon the welcoming or rejection of new words into the French language.

Marshal Petain was a member of the Academy when it was discussing the meaning of the word "defeatism." The marshal was opposed to the word. He said it was not French, had no place in the French dictionary, and should be erased from the people's mind. The marshal's advice was heeded, the word was tossed into the garbage can, everyone present felt proud that the French did not recognize defeat as a thing to be considered by French minds and urged by French voices. It was all very fine and nationalistic. But the gesture did not prevent the preaching of the doctrine of defeat which permeated France and paralyzed its army.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

AN OLD-TIME THANKSGIVING

The roads were white with snow, the air was clear.
The trees were decked with jewels of sparkling ice.

The sleigh bells jingled frosty notes of cheer.
The world was pure, a snowy Paradise.

We passed the wood, where the fleet-footed doe hid from a hunter garbed in warmest wool.
A black squirrel left faint tracks upon the snow.
Fence posts were hoods, gleaming and beautiful.

We saw the smoke of home come floating out.
When we had reached the bridge, The paneled door

Swung open, and the children with a shout
Of welcome, hugged their grandparents once more.

Soon to the kitchen we all tramped to see
The turkey roasting in an ancient pan.
The farm that year produced abundantly,
And gratefully the holiday began.

We still can hear the scraping of the chair
When Father leaned back after saying grace.
The long knife must be sharpened, and great care

Taken to fill the plates at every place.

The steaming white potatoes, squash, pale gold,
Cranberries cooked in the old-fashioned way,
Quince jelly glistening in its bright mold,
The sumptuous dinner of a bygone day

With no chairs empty, this we would reclaim.
But better still, the humble faith in One
Who blessed our dinner with His holy name,
We would have back before our life is done!

The thankfulness of a contented heart,
The love we bore each other, and our brave
Acceptance of our unobtrusive part
In the world's plan; the gentleness and grace

Dignity of old age, the mirth of youth,
Our joy in toil, the quiet harmonies
Of days that blazed in the sunlight of Truth—
What long white road will lead us back to these?

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

BY DREW FEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Washington—The plan still is in the discussion stage, but top-rung New Deal economists are seriously proposing that the WPA be abolished and replaced with a large-scale public works program for national defense. . . . the army is preparing for any eventuality no matter where it happens. It has quietly purchased over 7,400,000 yards of mosquito netting. Areas chiefly plagued by mosquitoes are Alaska, Newfoundland, Greenland and Latin America. . . . Only decoration on the walls of the inner sanctum of brain trusters Tommy Corcoran is a group of six pictures of the late great Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes. Corcoran was his secretary for several years.

Senator Charles McNary is one of the nattiest dressers in congress, also the best bean baker. The Oregonian loves to bake beans over an open fire, using bacon, molasses, sherry and eleven hours of simmering. . . . One congressional defeat Democratic leaders are not regretting is that of Representative Elmer J. Ryan, Minnesota Roosevelt-hater, who created an anti-third term scene at the Chicago convention. A former law partner of Governor Stassen, intimate Willie adviser, Ryan never mentioned the president during the campaign but did confer with Willkie.

WILLKIE'S NATIONAL UNITY
Willkie failed in his post-election broadcast to convince administration chiefs that he was sincere about wishing to promote national unity. Rightly or wrongly, they suspected a wily maneuver by Willkie to continue fighting the New Deal through a national "pressure group" . . . In the opinion of Don Berry, editor of The Indianapolis (Ind.) Record and campaign aide of Representative Cliff Hope, GOP farm chairman, Willkie's defeat "was probably due to his neglect of the farm vote. Mr. Willkie had with him advertising men. They should have used their good sales sense in selling the farmers a president."

Dr. Francis Townsend, long-faced mogul of the old-age pension movement, never lacks promotional ideas. Soundly trounced in the election, he has popped up with a proposal to organize a new party, to be known as Power Age-Pension party, whatever that means. . . . Cincinnati, Ohio, home of Senator Bob Taft, has the distinction of being the only city over 400,000 that went for Willkie. He carried it by a few thousand votes. Roosevelt won every other metropolis by considerable margins.

THAT BOMBIGHT

When they take their seats in January, two new Republican senators, from different sections of the country, will resume an old friendship. They are Ralph Brewster of Maine and Harold Burton of Ohio, once roommates at Bowdoin college. . . . The army's widely publicized bombight is now being built into bombers destined for Britain. However, United States forces have a new and better one—developed, incidentally, by the navy, which is the originator of all bombights used in this country. It supplies them to the army. . . . Chess champion of congress is Oklahoma's Representative Wesley Disney, cousin of the famous animated cartooner. He also collects antique chess sets.

One election gift Roosevelt brought back from Hyde Park was a puppy Scottie, presented by a neighbor and named "Falla" by the president, after a Scotch ancestor. . . . Between congressional sessions, Representative Frank Horton of Wyoming manages a dude ranch. . . . A good bet for one of the vacancies that will open in the securities and exchange commission after the first of the year, is Dr. Luther Haar, comptroller of Philadelphia. A former University of Pennsylvania economics professor and state banking commissioner, Haar managed Senator Joe Guelfy's successful re-election campaign and played a big role in putting Henry Wallace over at the Chicago convention.

TWO GARNER PICTURES

Out-going Vice President Jack Garner is the only man in history to have his picture hung at both ends of the capitol. An oil painting of the former speaker hangs in the house lobby, and another portrait, by Howard Chandler Christy, has just been put up in the senate lobby. . . . Henry Wallace, in preparation for taking over Garner's gavel, is cramming on parliamentary procedure. He is learning the fine points from Colonel Edwin Halsey, veteran senate secretary, and smart majority clerk Leslie Biffle. . . . A strong possibility to succeed Representative Joe Martin as national Republican chairman is Dave Ingalls, popular, smooth-working cousin and campaign manager of Senator Bob Taft. Although Ingalls never liked Willkie at Philadelphia, the latter became fond of Dave in the campaign and consulted him frequently. Ingalls also stands high with Alf Landon, the man who got Martin appointed as national chairman.

The political pot never stops boiling in Indiana. The ballots had barely been counted when the remnants of the once powerful McNutt machine launched a drive to unseat aggressive, colorful Fred Bays as Democratic state chairman. National Committeeman Frank McHale, McNutt's campaign manager, is after Bays' scalp because Bays shelved him. But McHale ran into unexpected trouble when the powerful labor bloc, with whom Bays is strong, got wind of the scheme and passed a resolution demanding Bays' retention. . . . On the GOP side a three-cornered wrangle also has developed between Glenn Hillis, unsuccessful candidate for governor, Jim Tucker, young secretary of state, and Bill Jenner, legislative leader. Complicating the situation are strained relations between the regular organization and the Willkie clubs.

NOTE ON ANNOYANCES

War, it seems, has its petty annoyances just as does every other condition of human living. And sometimes petty annoyances can become so troublesome that they almost overshadow the really great difficulties and troubles incident to living.

Britishers, so Time magazine reports, have protested so bitterly over the duration of the banshee wails of the air raid warning sirens that the signal has been shortened from two minutes to one.

There is, for all things, an explanation, and Time provides an interesting one for the nervous dislike evinced by Britishers for the siren wails. It writes:

"No haphazard noisemakers are Britain's wailing sirens. Sounded by air pressure operating on electric oscillators, they produce a discord which in the Middle Ages was regarded as the work of the devil. This discord is the augmented fourth (example: C and F sharp on the piano), was called the tritone because it spans three whole tones. The tritone was banned in sacred music, thus giving rise to a maxim: Mi contra fa est diabolus in musica (the tritone is the devil in music). When the sirens, beginning on a sweet major third or fifth, slip up and down into the blood-curdling tritone, it sounds that way to Londoners.—Montgomery Advertiser.

Passes in the Pyrenees mountains are extremely dangerous because of the winds.

A Bystander In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT

Washington—The Bering Sea sealing problem is in again.

This 70-year itch which has kept the State Department, the Bureau of Fisheries and the U. S. Coast Guard scratching heads since post-Civil war days has broken out again. It's all because Japan has just announced that she wants no further part of that treaty which for 29 years has regulated sealing and prevented complete extinction of the great seal herds of the north Pacific.

Russia and Great Britain are also parties to the treaty, but Japanese abrogation of it probably will have little effect on them. It may have considerable effect on the United States.

Just why the Japanese suddenly decide to abrogate a treaty which has proved so workable for nearly 30 years is something of a mystery.

In the official notification, the Japanese said the seal herd, that bases at the Pribilof Islands, just inside the fringe of the Aleutians, has got so large that it is a menace to Japanese fisheries.

Government fishery experts brand this as bunk, pointing out that migrations of the Pribilof seals do not carry them into Japanese waters.

But if this were so, the question that immediately follows is how does Japan plan to remove this menace? And the inevitable answer: By destruction of the great seal herd which for a good deal longer than 30 years has been recognized in international law to be primarily the property of the United States.

Federal Officials Mum

That isn't official reasoning. As a matter of fact, all government departments affected are cautiously mum on this latest international development in the Pacific.

Unofficially, however, there are off-the-record hints that the Japanese action was just another of those reciprocal hooks to the belt-line that are bound to come when nations get to trading punches.

The background of the story briefly is this: From the time when the first wandering fisherman discovered that seal skins and oil brought big profits, it was open season on these barking dogs of the briny deep. Seals are easily caught and killed. Slowing into the herd at sea, a fleet of small boats can slaughter them by the hundreds. (This is called pelagic or surface sealing.)

On land, they can be herded like cattle away from the water's edge and killed with clubs. Some idea of how simple it is may be understood from the fact that the Pribilof herd, estimated to contain 2,500,000 seals in 1880's, numbered approximately 125,000 in 1911.

The story of the Coast Guard cutter's heroic efforts to save the herd against the depredations of renegade American, Canadian and Japanese sealers would fill a volume.

On more than one occasion, the Coast Guard's zeal in seizing foreign boats precipitated international incidents, but it wasn't until 1911 that all the nations involved got together and worked out a plan.

Nations Divide Kill
The United States was to take over all killing of the Pribilof herd and give Canada and Japan each 15 per cent of the skins taken annually. Japan was to supervise the much smaller Robben Island herd and give Canada, the U. S. and Russia each 10 per cent of the kill. Russia was to handle the even smaller Commander Island herd and give Japan and Canada each 15 per cent of the kill.

For five years, the seals were not to be touched and after that, the only seals to be taken were the three-year-old males.

The plan worked beautifully. The Pribilof herd is now over two million. This year the 450 natives there, working under Bureau of Fisheries experts, killed about 65,000 seals. The skins were shipped to St. Louis for curing and auction in the fur market. Japan got about $44,000 in cash, Canada got the skins.

As far as sealing went, everybody seemed happy—even the seals—until Japan called the whole thing off.

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

The funniest thing in the news to me is that the two great labor organizations of the United States, each of which raises a squawk when employers show any delay in getting together, are unable to get together even by telephone.

I suggest that Will Friesell be appointed to handle this labor split from the standpoint of a good example. There's our outstanding American for 1940, a fellow with the honesty and courage to admit he can be wrong.

He ought to get a place in Washington, too, if only as a sort of a guide to behavior. Cornell beat Dartmouth on a last minute touchdown, which the experts alleged was made on a fifth down. A referee's decision is ordinarily final, even if the pictures disagree, and plenty of Americans were arguing that, error or not, the final score could not and should not be changed after a game had gone into history.

But Friesell came out promptly with a statement that he, and he alone, had made the mistake of permitting the extra down. And, like a true sport, Cornell promptly conceded the victory to Dartmouth.

In these days when wriggling and quibbling are all too common, a man, admitting a major mistake and being eager to correct it, stands out like a house afire.

"Well, I Carried 32 States This Year"

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—It is hard to understand the maneuverings now going on in the Republican state central committee on logical grounds. Committee members this week voted to remove Dr. F. L. Gullickson as chairman, on the excuse that Dr. Gullickson is also chairman of the campaign voluntary committee, with the result that the voluntary committee has gained strength and prestige at the expense of the legal machinery.

They want Gullickson to step down from the state central committee, and presumably they want the latter to become the ruling group of the party.

What they are asking in effect is the abolition of the voluntary committee, and the restoration of the state central committee to the power and prestige it once held, and presumably is entitled to by law. That task, however, involves the repudiation of the men and the leaders who have been responsible for the GOP's present degree of strength and success in Wisconsin and it also implies fundamental changes in the laws.

The voluntary committee has grown in importance and influence not only because it includes the names of men who control the Republican purse in Wisconsin, but because the state central committee is legally powerless to spend the kind of money necessary to conduct campaigns. In fact, the only reason for the existence of the voluntary committee at all is the financial impotence of the statutory committee.

Therefore, if the Republicans succeed in amending the laws to allow the legal machinery to control funds, they will simply be shifting the check-book from one pocket to another.

And in the process they will be repudiating the men who built and paid for the strongest Republican party organization Wisconsin has seen in decades, one which has kept the party in power in the statehouse for four years and almost carried the state for the ticket in the national election—all while the statutory committee members, by their own admission, were doing nothing.

There is another factor which makes the situation still more ludicrous. It is simply that no one can order a voluntary committee to disband. As long as Gullickson's present friends want to continue their campaign organization, and as long as they are able to finance it in the manner they did during the last campaign—Wisconsin has seen few $150,000 campaign funds in recent years—they will be in the Republican saddle in the state.

ANOTHER REASON

Precisely because the mechanical reasons advanced for the attempted reorganization don't hold much water, politicians have sought and, they believe, found a more adequate excuse for the proposed strengthening of the statutory group at the expense of the voluntary committee.

The background of the scrap is probably found in the long-standing friction between Gullickson and E. A. Bacon of Milwaukee. Now that Bacon has become national committeeman from Wisconsin, their quarrel has taken on greater meaning.

Both of them have potent and numerous friends, and it seems likely that the party organization is going to be split into Bacon and Gullickson partisans.

The quarrel has been going on a long time under cover. Only now that the elections are over and there is no great harm in public admission of their differences have they allowed it to creep out openly. Until their rival claims to generalship are arbitrated, wrangling is going to continue among the Republicans.

IODINE, B-COMPLEX

Long before we heard of vitamin B complex in this column readers were reporting, from time to time, that they believed their premature graying hair was getting its original color back since they began taking the Iodin Ration.

Iodin Ration is my name for the regular practice of taking a wee bit of iodine in one form or another every day or every week in order to supplement the inadequate amount of iodine most people get in food and water. . . . advocate the Iodin Ration for every man, woman and child not under medical care or not in need of medical care. On receipt of your request, if you enclose a stamped envelope bearing your address, I'll mail you a pamphlet giving instructions for taking an Iodin Ration.

Then a few years ago scientific investigators found that what was at first called vitamin B was not a single entity or factor but consisted of a group of several factors which naturally grow in combination, and to this natural combination of vitamin factors they gave the name vitamin B complex. It includes not only pure vitamin B (thiamin) or B1, but also vitamin G (pyridoxin) or B2, nicotinic acid, pyridoxine or B6, folic acid, anti-graying hair factor, anti-dermatitis factor and probably several others as yet not scientifically identified.

Just which factor in the B complex is essential to prevent premature graying of the hair (of experimental animals) is not yet clearly established, but insufficient intake of vitamin B complex certainly causes the hair of animals kept on controlled feed to turn gray before their maturity, and as certainly restoration of vitamin B complex to the feed of such animals brings back the natural color to the hair.

It is never safe to apply animal experimentation directly to human practice. But there is just one thing I can say about the use of Iodin Ration and vitamin B complex by individuals whose hair is prematurely gray—neither can do anybody a mile of harm in any circumstance, and I am confident no medical authority will question this assurance.

I offer the suggestion in this way in the hope that many thousands of readers whose hair is inclined to become gray too early may try it out thoroughly and let us have the benefit of their experience.

Besides the Iodin Ration, which is a simple matter to take, say two or three times a week, all one need do is eat four or five ounces of fresh wheat germ daily to get a good daily ration of vitamin B complex, or if that is too much trouble, one may simply take two or three capsules (not capsules, but semi-hard pill-like globules) of vitamin B complex along with breakfast every morning. This regimen, of course, must be continued for several months if it is to have any appreciable effect.

Asks Return to True Spirit of Thanksgiving

Pastor Urges Greater Humility in America In Talk Before Club

Kaukauna—A plea for a return to the original concept of Thanksgiving was made before the Kaukauna Rotary club at Hotel Kaukauna yesterday noon by the Rev. Robert K. Bell, pastor of Memorial Presbyterian church, Appleton.

The speaker pointed out that in this world of urban life and machines the fundamental principle of thanksgiving, that which the pilgrims had when they gave thanks to the Lord for his bounty to the earth, has been largely lost sight of. It has become more a matter of thanking ourselves than God.

"That Thanksgiving is a personal and individual matter is a thought we Americans need to heed at present," the Rev. Bell said.

He asked for a greater spirit of humility for Americans.

"We say, thank God I am an American. Fundamentally this means, thank God I'm better than any other man in the world. If democracy is going to make sense of us we should get rid of it or change it."

The country has shattered a tradition far more important than the third term by its adoption of peace-time tradition, the speaker stated. We have now adopted an attitude of "we'll show the world," and if we continue on such a course are headed for a fall, he said.

The Meaning to America of British Defeat

As the nation proceeds to put in effect the policy of supporting Great Britain, it will be most necessary to hold clearly in our minds why this policy, to which both parties have committed themselves, represents the vital interests of the United States. Much has been said on one aspect of the matter but the whole case has not yet been presented clearly and candidly to the people.

Thus it is well understood by almost every one that if Great Britain wins the war, the safety of the Western Hemisphere and of the main American interests in the Pacific Ocean is assured. It is well understood that the continuing resistance of Great Britain provides the United States with a protective shield behind which it can develop its naval and military defenses. It is well understood that if Britain were conquered, the United States would face alone, if not in actual war then at least in a warlike diplomacy and economic pressure, the combined power of Germany, Japan, Italy, and their satellite states. It is well understood that to be the one great democratic power left in a world of victorious totalitarian powers would be a kind of isolation such as Americans have never dreamed of.

But to have understood all of these things is not yet to have understood the whole reason why the effective support of Great Britain is the vital interest of America. For in the partial presentation of the case, there is the fatally misleading assumption that if Britain were defeated the peoples of the British Empire would somehow become a merely neutral force in the relations between the triple Axis and the Western Hemisphere. Most of the discussion here, except among those who are the best informed and have the clearest insight, supposes that the defeat of Britain would simply mean the withdrawal of the British fleet and British power as a barrier between the Axis and ourselves, that where Britain stands now there would then be nothing, and that our problem would then be to defend ourselves against, or to get on as best we could with, the victorious Axis. But this would not be the situation and it could not be.

Defeated Britain Would Have To Be Axis Partner

Though to say so must be a shock to many, the inescapable fact is that a defeated Britain could not be neutral. It would have to be a partner of the Axis. For if the defeat of Britain were a military defeat, resulting from invasion of the British Isles, the starvation of the British Isles, or the crushing of the spirit of the people of the British Isles, the government of Winston Churchill would inevitably be swept away and replaced by a regime which obeyed the orders of Berlin either because it was composed of men who hoped for favors from Berlin or by men who dared not say no to Berlin. It would be a regime similar to that of Vichy, except that there remains in France and among all patriotic frenchmen in Vichy the hope of an eventual liberation through a British victory. This saving hope is what now preserves the neutrality of France: were Britain defeated, there would be no such saving hope for France, and none for Britain. For how could a defeated Britain, with the Germans in occupation or with a pro-German government installed in London, hope for liberation from the United States?

The case would be no better if in order to avert a military conquest, the British decided to negotiate a peace with the victorious Axis. For such a peace could not be negotiated by Britons like Churchill and Bevin and Morrison who have sworn that they will never give up; it would have to be negotiated by Britons of a wholly different sort. In such a negotiation it is likely, as it conceivable, that the British appeasers would feel in any way bound to think of our interests. Certainly not. Is it not plain that their best chance of getting favorable terms for the British Empire would be to invite Hitler and to help Hitler to carve out his empire elsewhere? Except for strategic points like Gibraltar, Suez and Singapore, and a few colonies in Africa, there are no important territories under the British crown that Hitler greatly covets. His empire in Europe would be the continent of Europe and his empire overseas would be South America. An Anglo-German peace of appeasement, designed to spare Britain and to satisfy Hitler, would naturally be based on the principle of a free hand for Germany in continental Europe and Latin-America.

Effect of Appeasement Would Be World-Wide

The effects of the conquest of Britain or of the acceptance of a peace of Nazi appeasement would be world-wide. For while there would be no doubt the multitudes of British people everywhere, in Canada and in Australia, and in the colonies, who would never accept such a fate, there would be others who in loyalty to the crown and with patriotism would feel, as so many Frenchmen do, that they had to cling together and support the policy of the empire. Our relations with all British lands—Canada among them—would be profoundly unsettled. For we could never know for certain how far any British subject dissociated himself from what would then be the policy of London, from what would then be the obligation of loyalty to king and country. This is the tragedy of Franco-American and of Franco-British relations today. Although Britons and Americans have not ceased to love the French nation as the most civilized of peoples or to believe in it as the true defender of all that they cherish, yet they must take into account the terrible and insidious pressure of the German

Court Asked to Review Labor Board's Action

Milwaukee—The circuit court was asked yesterday to review a proceeding in which the state labor board took jurisdiction of a petition by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana for determination of a bargaining representative for its tank drivers in Wisconsin.

The International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers (AFL) contended that the state board had no jurisdiction because the corporation engaged in interstate commerce.

conquerors on the conscience and the loyalty of Frenchmen.

A defeated and subjugated government in London, operated by men who were bound to Berlin, who had given to Berlin hostages such as Vichy has had to give, would cause such a revolutionary unsettlement of all Anglo-American relations as no man can now fully imagine. We should not know in any part of the world who are our friends, who are the neutrals, who are our antagonists.

Thus, there is staked upon the effectiveness of our support to Great Britain much more than many of us have as yet allowed ourselves to realize. For while Britain resists and victorious is our first line of defense, Britain defeated and subjugated would become a force for disintegration and insecurity behind all our defenses. ## Dairy Foods Beneficial to Adults as Well as Children

Madison—"Adults need the body-building qualities of dairy foods almost as much as children do," the state medical society declared today.

"Modern research has shown that milk never ceases to be a valuable food. Its value in the preservation of good eyesight has been demonstrated, for milk is rich in vitamin A, the lack of which produces night blindness. The calcium of milk is known as a good muscle builder and helps keep muscles smooth, elastic and in good working order. When it is considered that the heart is largely composed of muscle, the immense importance of this fact should be appreciated. The calcium and the phosphorus of milk combine to keep the teeth in good repair, thereby saving much on dentist's bills. These are just a few of the reasons why milk is valuable in the diet in addition to the fact that it is a delicious and satisfying food."

"Protective Foods" "Eggs belong to the class of 'protective foods' which also include vegetables, fruits and milk. Eggs are an important addition to the diet because they provide protein of excellent quality, are rich in iron and contain phosphorus, fat and vitamins A and G in significant quantities. They are easily digested and therefore are useful in the diet throughout almost the entire span of human life. The yolk is richer in food elements than the white of egg. The yolk is one of the first supplements in the diet of an infant, and its chief purpose at that period is to supply iron.

"Butter is one of the few fats that should appear daily, as such, on the family table. It is made from the fat of milk, where it is present in the form of globules. Since these fat globules are lighter than the other ingredients in milk, they rise to the top as cream, if the milk is allowed to stand quietly for a time. Cream is removed from milk, commercially, by a special machine called a separator, and still contains some of the milk. When the cream is churned to make butter, the fat globules cling together more closely, thus making a more nearly

Neenah Woman Author of Book on Paper Weights

Always fascinated by her grandmother's paper weight, known as a Millefiori which is Italian for a "thousand flowers," Mrs. John Bergstrom, 165 N. Park avenue, Neenah, dreamed as a child that someday she might have a Millefiori as her own. In later years, she did secure one and it was that love for old paper weights that started her on a hobby of collecting that will be culminated next Wednesday when the publishing house of the R. R. Donnelley and Sons company, Chicago, releases her book, "Old Glass Paper Weights."

The book, bound in deep rose leather and embossed with a gold paperweight, contains 20 colored plates of paperweights in her collection and 80 black and white plates.

Recognized as an authority on glass paper weights, Mrs. Bergstrom has embodied in her book descriptions of the French, English and American weights in her collection; how they came to be made and the process of making glass weights.

Gives Talks, Exhibits
Mrs. Bergstrom has given innumerable talks and exhibits of her collection in Chicago, Milwaukee and the Fox River valley. She is scheduled to speak at the Woman's Tuesday club and the Who's New club this winter in Neenah. A display of her paper weights has been shown in Chicago's Art Institute.

The book is easily within the grasp of the novice in the field of paperweights for at no point has Mrs. Bergstrom been needlessly technical or obscure in her material yet she has achieved a text that will be welcomed by collectors. Mrs. Bergstrom has investigated the history of paperweights, the methods of their fabrication and the characteristics of the weights which came from the outstanding factories of the old world and the new. She has often been face to face with fakes, imitations, duplicates and dubious pieces. She has learned to detect many of the marks of counterfeit and worthless weights.

The 20 color plates in the book represent one of the most intricate and exacting pieces of work in color reproduction ever attempted for the subjects involve many shapes and much faceting in innumerable color combinations.

Principal divisions in the book include: "The Art of Paperweights," "How Paperweights are Made," France, St. Louis, Baccarat, Clichy, Cambray, Venetian, England, Nailsea, Stourbridge, London, Belgian, German, American, Sandwich, New England Glass works, Mount Washington, Fairpoint, Somerville, John A. Gillerand, Doerringer, Millville and Midwestern.

The cast of characters is as follows: Mrs. Maggie O'Leary, Margaret Clark; Betsy, Bernadette Jacobs; Emmet, Don Stumpf; Mrs. Bridget Donahue, Helen Hicpas; Eileen Noonan, Lucille Diermeier; Lida Noonan, her sister, Bernice Scheppier; Prof. P. D. Farnum, Irving Grishaber.

The book is easily within the grasp of the novice in the field of paperweights for at no point has Mrs. Bergstrom been needlessly technical or obscure in her material yet she has achieved a text that will be welcomed by collectors. Mrs. Bergstrom has investigated the history of paperweights, the methods of their fabrication and the characteristics of the weights which came from the outstanding factories of the old world and the new. She has often been face to face with fakes, imitations, duplicates and dubious pieces. She has learned to detect many of the marks of counterfeit and worthless weights.

The 20 color plates in the book represent one of the most intricate and exacting pieces of work in color reproduction ever attempted for the subjects involve many shapes and much faceting in innumerable color combinations.

Principal divisions in the book include: "The Art of Paperweights," "How Paperweights are Made," France, St. Louis, Baccarat, Clichy, Cambray, Venetian, England, Nailsea, Stourbridge, London, Belgian, German, American, Sandwich, New England Glass works, Mount Washington, Fairpoint, Somerville, John A. Gillerand, Doerringer, Millville and Midwestern.

The cast of characters is as follows: Mrs. Maggie O'Leary, Margaret Clark; Betsy, Bernadette Jacobs; Emmet, Don Stumpf; Mrs. Bridget Donahue, Helen Hicpas; Eileen Noonan, Lucille Diermeier; Lida Noonan, her sister, Bernice Scheppier; Prof. P. D. Farnum, Irving Grishaber.

Council Wades Through Work In Record Time

Approves Contracts For Materials, Labor For Municipal Pool

Apparently anxious to get home and rest up for that big Thanksgiving dinner today, Appleton aldermen last night waded through routine business in a half hour, one of the shortest council sessions on record.

The council authorized the purchase of 180 gallons of caulking compound from the Gagnon Clay Products company, Green Bay, on the firm's low bid of $1.80 per gallon. The material will be used at the municipal swimming pool.

Other contracts for the pool, given by the board of public works, were approved including deals for concrete pipe from the Koepke construction company, for excavation at the pool by the Charles A. Green and Son company, and for laying cement blocks at the pool by the United Construction Service, Inc. The work has been started at the pool.

Aldermen voted to start condemnation proceedings to acquire parts of two lots needed to extend Lehman lane in a curve to Mason street.

A license to tunnel under the right of way of the Chicago and North Western Railroad company for a sanitary sewer was accepted by the city in behalf of the Whiting Pines and Glendale sanitary districts. The districts in turn executed an indemnity bond relieving the city of all responsibility involved in the work.

Parking Problems
Permission to improve the boulevards near the Zwicker Knitting mills on Packard street and the Tuttle Press on Union street for parking purposes was given to both companies. The council also voted to prohibit parking on the north side of Harris street between Oneida street and Morrison street; on the south side of Franklin street between Oneida and Morrison streets; in front of St. Therese church; and on Oneida street between Wisconsin avenue and Randall street.

Licenses were granted to the following: Second hand store, J. H. Green, 106 S. Walnut street; bowling alley, Jess Arcade, 117 N. Appleton street; and Appleton Eagles association, 119 E. Washington street; operators, Thomas J. Hawk, 117 E. Harris street, Ralph Lex, 618 W. College avenue, Leslie H. Rosera, 1225 W. Second street, and Willard Horn, 225 S. Tehulah avenue.

Street lights were voted for the intersections of Verbrick street and Memorial drive and N. Union street and Alice street. Action on the installation of a light at N. Drew street and E. Nicholas street was deferred.

A written report on the condition of Oneida street bridge was referred to the city engineer and the street and bridge committee.

The council adjourned to 2 o'clock Monday afternoon to consider the 1941 tax rate and budget.

Union Will Elect Officers Tuesday

Kimberly—The Kimberly Mill Workers' union will hold nominating election next Tuesday at the village hall for directors and officers. Directors to be nominated will be for the warehouse and plant department; paper machines and statistical; sulphite, maintenance and structural; steam and electric; finishing room and girl restaurant; woodroom and cinders.

Officers to be nominated are president, vice president, secretary and treasurer. The polls will be open from 6 o'clock in the morning until 7 o'clock in the evening. The union rules provide that a director can also be an officer and that a member must be paid up to be eligible to vote.

At the William Verhagen Post No. 60 meeting Tuesday evening, at the clubhouse George Hankwitz, clubmaster, explained that the social held at the clubhouse last Sunday was a success. The post made a donation to the iron lung which will be installed at St. Elizabeth hospital, Appleton.

Movies of the Badger Boys State camp of Delafield, will be shown at the high school and at the legion clubrooms soon.

The children's Christmas party sponsored by the legion and auxiliary, village board and the Booster club will be held Dec. 20. Over 1,400 bags of candy were given out to children at a similar party last year.

Phil Broom, Henry and Earl Mortes and Lyle Fredricks, will leave Friday morning for Forest county near the Michigan line to hunt deer.

Company D Baseball Team Is Pride of the Regiment

"I'll stack this company of mine up against any in camp," thus writes Captain H. J. Piette, commander of Company D, 127th Infantry, Wisconsin National Guard, which is now engaged in a year's military training with the 32nd division at Camp Beauregard, La.

News letters received today from Corporal Tom Nooyen and Captain Piette reveal that the company members are all in "fine shape," enjoying their experience, and learning plenty. As the captain reports, "The big boys are losing weight and replacing it with muscle and the thinner lads have gained from 5 to 15 pounds." The captain recently visited the 120th Field Artillery band from Appleton and found all the fellows "fine."

The Appleton company is the second largest in the 32nd division. It has a company headquarters of 15 men, two platoons of 30-caliber machine guns, one platoon of 50-caliber anti-tank guns, and one platoon of 81 millimeter mortars.

Corporal Nooyen reports: "Our company has the rest of the regiment a little starry-eyed at our athletic abilities. The baseball team has three shutout victories, due largely to the pitching of Bob Diener. The victory was an 11-0 defeat over Company M of Fond du Lac, formerly title holders in the regiment. Diener allowed one hit in blanking Company I of Neenah 1-0 and went on to hurl his teammates to a 3-0 win over the service company. Manager John Kuchenbecker has challenged any team in the regiment."

Out For Football
"Four members of the company have won places on the first regimental football team. They are Sergeant Bob Green at center, Private Becker Lenz at tackle, Private Bill Bedat at tackle, and Corporal Kuchenbecker at quarterback."

"The fellows have no complaint to make about the food, but just the same they appreciate those good old-fashioned cookies from home."

"Some of the boys have been singing a song which has been revised to go, 'I Can't Get Old Wisconsin Off My Mind.'"

"The immense training program is well under way and improvement is already evident in every soldier. The day's work may be gruelling, but the fellows seem to be enjoying it and are devoting themselves to learning the principal arms of the unit. Ever since our arrival here, operations have continued on a 24-hour basis to provide us with new and more convenient quarters. We expect to move to our new base at Camp Livingston (formerly Camp Toga) soon."

"Here's an idea of how a member of the Appleton company spends his day: He is routed out of a blissful sleep by the unwelcome bugler at 5:45 in the morning. Mess follows 45 minutes later, with drill call at 7:15 and recall at 11:30. The boys go out again at 12:30 in the afternoon returning at 4:30. After mess at 6 o'clock, the evening is free, with movies every night at the post theater."

"Training schools have started, with many of the fellows enrolled in courses such as grenade, rifle, mortar, machine gun, tactics, athletics, etc."

"Company headquarters, consisting of the maintenance personnel has just been equipped with rifles to acquaint themselves with."

Captain Piette reports that the new table of organization calls for 6 officers and 205 enlisted men. The additional 82 men which the Appleton company will need will come from the ranks of those who are being drafted.

There has been "very little sickness" among the fellows, the captain reported. Ample equipment has been provided with satisfactory promptness.

100 Attend Forum on Draft Act Procedure

About 100 young men registered under the selective service act attended an open forum discussion on draft procedure last night at the Appleton Y. M. C. A.

Speakers at the meeting, open to all young men registered, were Dr. C. L. Kolb and John Lappen, members of the Appleton district draft board, and James R. Joyce, the board's appeal agent.

Each of the three men covered a different phase of the act in his talk and answered questions asked by the young men.

and knocking out the captain and me for a minute or so, and wetting the rest of the crew right through.

"The captain stopped the engines."

"... We saw all kind of wreckage floating by. ... Just then the ship struck the shoals with a shock that shook her from one end to the other, keeping it up until she was finally banging up against the bank about 500 feet from shore and about 11 miles from Little Sable light."

Simplett kept the log during the two and a half days the Novador's crew waited to be rescued.

The after crew had been trapped in the oilers' room and could not be reached because of tremendous seas breaking over the grounded vessel. When they tried to crawl to the forward part of the ship two men fell into the sea and were not seen again.

"I had wanted to try to swim ashore on Tuesday," Simplett wrote, "but the captain and the crew would not let me. ... I knew they would not all be there by night if we had to stay on the ship."

"We kept shooting rockets up until finally about 10 o'clock we saw a boat coming down the coast. ... it was a grand sight."

"It was a fishing tug owned by Clyde Cross who with two companions, made the rescue from the Novador."

Federal Judge Rules On North Shore Railway

Chicago—(U)—A ruling that the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railway was engaged in interstate commerce and therefore subject to the 1937 railway retirement and carrier taxation acts was announced yesterday by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

The electric line operates between downtown Chicago and Milwaukee, serving intermediate communities in Illinois and Wisconsin. It carries both passengers and freight.

Judge Wilkerson issued the ruling in denying a request by the line's receiver for authorization to refrain from compliance with the laws on the ground that the road was not engaged in interstate commerce within the meaning of legislation.

The litigation involved a jurisdictional dispute between two labor groups—the railroad brotherhoods and the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees of America. Employees may choose between either group for collective bargaining purposes but will receive equal protection and benefit under the railroad act, Leo J. Hassenauer, counsel for the brotherhoods, said.

K. P. DUTY GONE—The army asks that its meals be judged on results. Gone is the kitchen police duty of World war days. The army hires outsiders for the traditional K. P. work.

Army Looks to Its Kitchens To Put Ruggedness in Ranks

(This is the fourth of six articles describing the army camp life draftees will lead.)

BY MORGAN M. BEATTY

Washington—(U)—The cooks have already qualified for most of the medals in the draft army.

The army asks only to be judged on results, not special meals or recipes. If you're a whiz at pumpkin pie, Mother, they won't even try to compete. They say theirs is good. That's all. But they'll stack their day-in-day-out menus against you.

In the end the army thinks it'll produce healthier men. For army men suspect mothers encourage their boys in indigestible directions and unbalanced diets. (They can't prove it, though.)

In the draft army it'll be breakfast, dinner and supper, with the accent on dinner in the middle of the day. Choice of coffee, tea, or milk every meal. Cafeteria style, mostly.

On four days a year, the army really stuffs, Christmas, Thanksgiving, New Year's, and Organization day. That last is the anniversary of the date a particular regiment was organized. On those days there'll be two kinds of meat, four vegetables, two kinds of desserts, candy, fruit, nuts, and all the trimmings, except hard liquor.

Here's a sample menu for the ordinary day:
Breakfast—Fruit, toast, cereal, bacon and eggs, coffee, tea or milk.
Dinner—Soup, meat, mashed potatoes and gravy, string beans, peas, pie, coffee, tea or milk.
Supper—Salad, cold meat cuts, stewed prunes, cookies, coffee, tea or milk.

In the field, the men'll get the equivalent in cans, with accent on slum gullion of one kind or another.

And, Mom, P. S.: If you're from New England, the army says please try to be lenient. Don't ask 'em to serve pie and baked beans for breakfast. Nobody but New Englanders will eat that chow at 7 a. m. Tomorrow: There'll be plenty of hard work.

78 Fatalities in State Accidents During October

Total Is Slight Decrease From Same Month a Year Ago

Although October traffic in Wisconsin was heavier this year than last, there was a slight decrease in fatal highway accidents, according to the safety division of the motor vehicle department.

Outagamie county's record, however, did not conform with the state in general. Last month six persons were killed as against none in October of 1939. Waupaca county showed none last month as against two in October a year ago.

Accidents in the state claimed 78 lives this October, a 13 per cent decrease from the toll of 79 lives lost last October. Increased mileage is evidenced by the consumption of approximately 1,100,000 more gallons of gasoline in October, 1940, than in the same month of 1939.

October's 78 deaths showed a 15.2 per cent decrease from the previous month's toll of 92 deaths.

At 11 a. m. Oct. 9, every county was credited with one or more traffic fatalities. In 1939 Burnett, Kewaunee and Taylor counties were on the state's honor roll. Honor county in 1939 was Pepin, and in 1937, Polk and Marquette shared honors. The year 1940 is the first

San Diego, Calif.—(U)—The sheep quartered aboard the Greek freighter Aghia Thalassma, tied up here because of the war, looked longingly at the green pastures ashore and began bleating.

Captain Oanis Gialouris quickly stopped the noise. He painted the ship's forecastle green—and fed the sheep grass and hay.

Young Appleton Painter Given Award for Work

Tom Dietrich's Oil Painting One of 148 Chosen by Professor

An oil painting, "The Merry Go Round," by Tom Dietrich, young Appleton artist, was one of 148 entries chosen for an award by Professor Milo M. Buck of the Wisconsin department of comparative literature, at the opening of the seventh annual Wisconsin salon of art in the university Memorial Union galleries last night.

An exhibition group of 148 water colors, oils, graphics and sculpture pieces were chosen from 630 entries. They will be on display through Dec. 12.

The awards—purchase prizes offered by the Wisconsin union, Joseph E. Davies, former special assistant to the United States secretary of state, and the Madison Art association—also were made for the following:

Stone figure, "Dairyman," by Chester Mayer of Milwaukee. This was also judged the most meritorious work of the salon.

Oil painting, "An Off Moment," by L. W. Bentley of Two Rivers.

Water color, "Back to Pug's," by Charles La Clair, a former Wisconsin student now residing at Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Woodcut, "Quilting Bee," by Frank Utpatel of Mazomanie.

Architectural sculpture, won by David Parsons of Milwaukee.

Oil painting, "Helen," by John Wilde of Madison.

in NAMES

When Antonio Stradivarius built a violin it had that deep, full-throated tone like nothing else on earth.

When the imitators in Cremona (they had them there, too) built their violins they didn't have what the Stradivarius had. Stradivarius became the violin name you could trust.

We Trust

Whether it's a camera, an automobile, a watch, or a can of soup, almost everything we build in America bears a name.

Honest products bear good, honest names.

The merchant who sells quality products with honest names has an honest responsibility.

He has to stay where people can find him and sell products of the standard people expect. He has to live up to his name.

On the other side of the fence is the firm who is in business to "sell for less." He has no name to live up to. He has only a price to cut down to.

He recognizes no obligation of service.

He feels no challenge of improvement.

We believe that most people deep down in their hearts love, honor and prefer the Honest Names in business for the quality they represent. They may experiment for a while, but sooner or later they come back to knock at the door they know.

Marx Jewelers have created an enviable reputation for selling only the finest quality products backed by unexcelled service during their thirty years in business.

Beauty and You

PLASTIC SET—Of course she is delighted with her very own dresser set! Light because it is plastic, handsomely carved and of her favorite color!

Men should most certainly do their Christmas gift buying early. At best, shopping is usually a bore to men and it becomes an impossibility when counters are three-deep with impatient customers once the Christmas rush begins. But most men realize that a woman is twice as thrilled with a gift her man has chosen personally, so they should get busy and shop this week!

Here are a few suggestions of gifts which are most certain to please women. The bewildered man shopper might clip this column and carry it to the nearest good cosmetic counter.

For a young wife or daughter: If she needs a dresser set ask to see that lovely Victorian copy in plastic which has a central motif of a carved butterfly. The mirror, comb and unusually good brush come in four colors—ivory, pink, blue or yellow. The blue is a heavenly Dresden blue if you are doubtful about which color to choose!

For the woman who adores the new: For wearing on a coat or woolen dress there is a black and gold striped tigris clip holding a champagne glass in an outstretched paw. He's a fun-loving animal and created for a purpose, for hidden in the tiny receptacle is a cotton pad which, when saturated with your lady's favorite perfume, envelops her with fragrance for hours on end. If you want to impress her mightily with your adoration, you will send along a bottle of perfume too—there is an exquisite sophisticated blend which inspired the creation of the tigris clip. The sales girl will identify it for you.

For the cologne loving woman: Whether you know it or not all women are cologne loving, but some think it too great an extravagance. A few women think of colognes and orchids as luxuries they can live without! But how pleased are they when presented with a bottle of exquisite fragrance. So, men, there's your cue. A newcomer this year is a lovely essence which borrows its name from a semi-precious stone and is offered by that perfume firm which uses the drum as its motif in packaging. This cologne is most appropriate for gala occasions, it is double-strength, and will be cherished to the last drop.

For a gay young thing: No teen age girl can have too many powder compacts so you are safe in presenting her with a triple-threat vanity which holds a full-sized lipstick (not a teeny thing as most combination compacts do) loose powder, and rouge. The shape is so odd that it is unique—it graduates in depth from lipstick thickness at the hinge to an incredible thinness at the front catch. On the lid is a highly polished disc for her monogram, or if your friendship warrants it, you may have your initials and hers engraved there. The compact is goldplated so will not tarnish.

For home-loving lady: The very feminine, dainty personality will rejoice in receiving three luxurious taffeta envelopes, heavily scented with pink clover or honeysuckle, for her bureau drawers. Handkerchiefs, gloves, lingerie or other accessories may be kept beautifully scented.

Miss Lindsay has prepared a Christmas list of "Gifts Women Cherish," to assist men shoppers. These gifts range in price from $1 to $20. It is free upon request if you write for it care of this paper and enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope to cover mailing cost.

Good Taste Today by Emily Post

The folded card that has the name printed on the top side, and looks exactly like a visiting card, is nevertheless not properly used as a card left by a visitor at some one's house or sent with a gift. The use of the folded card is limited to writing invitations and messages by those whose handwriting is not condensible, and is therefore too large for the space on an ordinary visiting card. A reader wants to know, "Could the folded card that has the printed name on the front be used instead of a visiting card in cases where the card is to be left with a message for a friend who is not at home?"

If you write a note on it, its use would be proper. If you have no visiting cards except the folded kind, you can quite well cut a few of these in half (along the fold) for emergency use. Let us hope you can cut straight! It will be well to order some regulation cards—unless you so rarely use them that cut-in-half ones will do.

Gloves with Daytime Suits Dear Mrs. Post: Just how wrong would it be for the men in my wedding party to wear striped trousers and cutaways and no gloves?

Answer: It will not be wrong at all unless the wedding is to be very large and very elaborate in every other detail of preparation.

What Does Man Call His Father-in-law? Dear Mrs. Post: What should a man call his father-in-law when addressing him (a) in the office and

Luck Plays Big Part in Making Hand

BY ELY CULBERTSON

At the very start of the recent self-rating examination, I warned readers that answers would be based on common sense and logic rather than on the tenets or conventions of any particular "system." In actual games, we are continually confronted with situations that cannot be solved by referring to a particular page of any book, situations that demand the application of pure reason. It was my aim to stimulate those very conditions in the examination. Question 9 was a case in point.

North-South vulnerable. The bidding proceeds:

West North East South

1 heart 1 spade Pass ?

Q54 ♥62 ♦AK105 ♣KJ94

What fact do you make?

The fact that most examinees did not produce the correct answer can be attributed, I think, to their unwillingness to give double raises on fewer than four trumps. Usually this is a sound, even a vital, policy. But the "four trump" requirement was established to cover the double raise of an original bid. The trump requirement for the various raises of partner's overalls cannot be so exactly codified.

In cases of this sort, we must fall back on common sense. Take the bidding sequence in Question 9, for example. With West holding the strength for an opening heart bid, and with three plus honor tricks in the South hand, it is about 100 to 1 that North's vulnerable spade overcall was based on a good spade suit, if little else. In other words, we need not fear that North has a four card suit. Hence, our Q 5 4 becomes adequate support, not merely for a single, but for a double raise. And since no other bid expresses our holding nearly so well, three spades is, by the old reliable process of elimination, the best bid.

The bidding:

The bidding was extremely vigorous and the final contract scarcely to be admired, but as so often happens, fortune smiled on the foolishly brave.

West was hard put to it for an opening lead and finally selected a trump. Declarer's heart must have sunk when he saw the dummy (he probably hoped that North had underbid a trick or two) but to South's credit, it must be admitted that he seized the one chance, remote as it was, for fulfilling the contract. Obviously, there was no comfort to be found in the diamond suit, no matter how well it broke, since South had to find a place for two discards. So he won the opening lead in dummy and led a low heart toward his hand. The miracle happened! East was caught with a doubleton honor. East playing low, declarer finessed the nine. West was helpless. He could take his king now or later, but not another trick. As it happened, he took the trick and shifted to clubs, but the boat had sailed. Declarer clattered up with the ace and, after drawing trumps, laid down his heart ace. The queen innocently fell, setting up dummy's jack and ten for the much needed discards.

The opponents had good reason to yell "Highway robbery!"

Divorce Often Does Not Solve Marriage Problems

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I have known for a long time that my husband was running around with other women. I don't think that he really cares for any of them. He just likes the adventure and for them to flatter him and to show that he is a fascinator. But my friends tell me that I shouldn't stand for it, that I should have enough self-respect to take the children and leave him. But he is affectionate and kind to us and tells me he loves me and he provides us with a good home. I have poor health and could not possibly support the children and give them the advantages that their father does if I should take my friends' advice and break up my home. He does not make enough money to maintain two homes. I feel that as long as we can keep a home together, educate the children and live peacefully I am better off to let things stand as they are. What do you think? Am I right to stick with him and let him go on as he has been doing? Should I interfere in his affairs? Or should I get a divorce?

Answer:

Dorothy Dix I think you are taking by far the wiser course, and the one that will bring the greatest good and happiness to all concerned in just ignoring your husband's infidelities and making the best of a bad situation.

It takes a lot of courage and strength of character and hard horse sense for a wife to shut her eyes to her husband's philandering and carry on, but, 99 times out of 100, it pays, if he is pleasant and kindly in the home and if he provides her with a comfortable living. True, if she loves him it wrings her heart with jealousy. True, he tramples her pride in the dust. But because she has lost some of the good things of marriage, it is folly to throw everything out of the door.

Divorce No Panacea

The wife's first impulse when she finds she has a rival is to rush to the divorce court, but a divorce is no panacea for what ails her. There is no magic in a decree knowing that she has been superseded by another, or that makes her feel gay and happy over having lost the man she loves, or that turns her once more into a carefree girl. She is still middle-aged, careworn woman with children, saddened and disillusioned, and with nothing of glamor left.

All her divorce has brought her is not only the shattering of her house of dreams but the pulling down of the tangible house in which she has lived. Instead of the generous support her husband gave her she has the small alimony the court allotted her.

Instead of her pleasant circle of friends and her social position she is a divorcee, without enough money to gild the situation. Often her vaunted freedom means only the freedom to look for a job and the necessity of working to support her children.

"Half a loaf is better than no bread," says the old proverb, and if a wife cannot have all she wants from her husband, she is sensible to take what she can get.

Love and loyalty are, of course, the two great things in marriage, but when one has lost these things there are still consolation prizes in a good home, a good car, security and the ability to give one's children the advantages that they deserve.

Don't Mean What They Say

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am desperate. I am a girl of 18. Have been married for seven months, but my husband has nagged and criticized me until he has killed my love. He has badgered me until I am a nervous wreck. During the last two months I have met a man with whom I have fallen in love and who loves me very dearly, and he wants me to divorce my husband and marry him.

In spite of the way my husband has treated me, he says he loves me and will kill himself if I leave him. On the other hand, the man I love says he will kill himself unless I marry him. I do not want to be responsible for either's death so please advise me what to do.

TROUBLED WIFE.

Answer:

I think you are flattering yourself in thinking that either your husband or your sweetheart will commit suicide over losing you. You know what the poet says—"Men have died and worms have eaten them, but not for love."

Don't take it too seriously when men threaten to kill themselves. Occasionally they do, of course, but nine times out of 10 it is just a gesture intended to intimidate those about them and they haven't the slightest intention of harming themselves. Any hospital will tell you that after people take poison they yell for the stomach pump.

But don't you think that seven months is a very short time to give marriage a trial? Don't you think you are being a quitter not to work a little longer and a little harder to make it a success? Why don't you take your husband back and see if he won't criticize you less, and you show a little more patience before you rush into the divorce court?

And, take it from me, child, swapping husbands won't settle the problem of how to be happy, though married. All that it amounts to is just exchanging one set of faults for another that are just as hard to get along with. For no man is perfect, and no wife ever got a husband who was just like she wanted him to be.

All Wounds are Healed by Time

Dear Dorothy Dix—Two months ago I killed my fiancé's sister accidentally. Her family were very understanding about it, but I broke our engagement, knowing my presence would always be a reminder of the tragedy.

Answer: In this case you would have to send two invitations since you should never put any man's name under that of a woman! To put your employer's name under that of his mother is unthinkable.

Emily Post's booklet, "The Etiquette of Weddings," will answer all the questions about the ceremony and the reception that you have been asking yourself. Send for it, enclosing ten cents. Address Emily Post, in care of the Post-Crescent, Post Office Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y.

Case Records of a Psychologist

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

Marcelle is paying attention to symptoms and not looking deeper to the basic cause of her husband's anger. His bitter criticisms are only a smoke screen for a typical "triangle" situation. Every wife who is married to a second husband should study Marcelle's case carefully. It is easily possible to have your second husband eating out of your hand, so to speak, but you must be sure to follow the correct technique.

CASE S-134: Marcelle B., aged 35, is the mother of two grammar school youngsters. "Oh, I feel terrible," she wept as she began to recite her woes. "My weight has increased since I last saw you, Dr. Crane, and now I tip the scales at 180 pounds."

"My husband is so sarcastic about it. He calls me vile names in front of the children. He sneers at my figure and countermands my orders to the children. Dr. Crane, everything seemed so rosy when I last saw you, but now my weight is making my life a tragedy. What can I do?"

DIAGNOSIS:

Marcelle's husband hasn't said anything about divorce. Nor does he run around with other women. He works diligently and is generous with his family. Marcelle isn't in such a tragic situation, therefore, as she imagines, for she still can hold his love as well as his admiration if she employs the proper psychology.

The best antidote for the usual type of overweight is dieting. If she'd diligently stay on 1200 to 1400 calories per day, she could regain her former slender figure, and thereby resurrect many emotional memories which she now cannot bring forth.

Hints Re Second Husbands

The root of her difficulty lies in the fact that she was married before and divorced. Her children are by her present husband, but he is somewhat jealous of the fact that she has her as an obese wife when the first husband enjoyed her as a slender girl.

If you think such thoughts don't arise to disturb the peace of mind cried. "Temu Darin say you no glo."

"Am I a prisoner?" Lynn demanded.

"No, no, I you slavee. You wait. He come back. You glo now, he beat me." The girl went through the contortions of writhing from the blows of a club on her back.

"Beat you?" Lynn recoiled.

She could pick up this child and set her aside as easily as if she were a puppy. But what was the use? She turned and paced the floor in a maze of distress. So this was what her sweet dreams had led her into! Was it real? Was it possible that this thing could be happening to her, Lynn Britton?

Her thoughts turned to Sherlock Fuchs. He had said: "The gods, the demons, the whole universe is but a mirage which exists in the mind, springs from it, sinks into it." He had said mirage, not illusion. And a mirage is a reflection, however distorted, of something that really exists.

As if in response to her thoughts, Sherlock knocked at her door. Boys from the kitchen followed him in.

"My child," he said, "Temu and I shall dine with you tonight."

The servants lit the lamps and began setting the table.

"Will you arrange a place for my brother?" she asked as he warmed his hands over a glowing brazier.

"There is a place for your brother's message which is all that will come tonight."

She felt the situation as maddening, unbearable. "Then when will he come—if you have the power to foretell!"

He shrugged. "Things work themselves out."

"I see they do," she exclaimed.

"My brother has disappeared and I am held here prisoner. What on earth can it mean?"

Temu Darin entered wearing army clothes of London make. The uniform, a link with the familiar world, was like a personality. It had a strange effect on Lynn, as if a friend had appeared though he brought an enemy with him.

He bowed and answered, "We are merely taking care of you as representatives of the Prince of Shani Lun."

Lynn's eyes remained hostile. "I warn you to take good care of me. I am an American citizen and I have important friends."

"My dear," murmured the little priest, "we shall protect you with our lives."

She looked at his serene, smiling face and felt somewhat comforted.

Presently they sat down at the table, lovely with silver and linen and Chinese porcelain. In the center a bowl of pink roses from the green-houses of Peking shed their elusive fragrance.

"We are sorry your reception should be like this," remarked Temu Darin, laying his napkin on his knee. "Try not to think of us as enemies."

Lynn wondered if there were something mocking as well as evasive back of his words.

"How else can I think of you?" she asked. Lifting a spoonful of soup to her lips, she sipped it gently and swallowed—a pretty gesture when made by a pretty girl. She saw his heavy-lidded eyes on her throat and added maliciously, "My maid informed me that you would beat her if I left the room."

"Not at all," he answered pleasantly. "Chan, the head coolie, disciplines the servants."

Lynn turned to the lama. "Do you expect me to be philosophical about men who beat women?"

His little eyes twinkled. "Some women need beating."

Lynn sat back in her chair and stared at the bowl of roses. Presently, she laughed and resumed her dinner. What he had said was true: some women do need beating. She had known such women. The old man beamed at her but the young man's eyes were less readable.

"The girl tells me she's a slave," Lynn added. "Does she mean slave?"

"She means slave. She's a gift to you from the Princess Mother, especially trained by her." Temu answered carefully. "Though the child does not understand English very well, you will find her devoted to you."

Lynn took it for a covert apology and her cheeks warmed a bit, but she was glad for the reassurance. "Really a slave," she murmured. "There is something unconstraining in me that thrills to the idea of owning a slave. I accept her, but I suppose it is my duty as a good American to free her at once."

Little Bamboo

The lama shook his head. "You cannot evade an obligation that easily, my dear. Slaves are freed only from within. Hire her to a mistress or give her to a husband, she is still a slave." Servants brought the final course, consisting of rice and tea.

"You may as well keep the girl," said Temu Darin. "Her name is Little Bamboo."

"I shall write home," "Dear friends, slave girl; her name is Little Bamboo. She was especially trained for me by the Princess Mother of Shani Lun." She caught herself up suddenly.

Expresses Thanks for U.S. Peace, Freedom

BY ANGELO PATRI

Thanksgiving day was set by the Puritans of New England at a time in their history when there seemed to be little enough to inspire gratitude. These people had left home, and all that home means, behind them without hope of seeing it again. They had suffered terribly from cold and hunger and illness. Death had laid laid of their number on the still hillside. For what had they to give thanks?

The fact that they could thank God without danger to life and limb. The fact that though half-starved, sick and sad, they could feel free to follow their conscience in the service of God. Measured against that high privilege the threats of the wilderness and the grief were incidental. And then there was the serene beauty of the New England autumn. There is nothing in the world to compare with the peace, the color and sound and smell of fall in the Land of the Pilgrim's Pride.

Golden and Rose-Colored

The hills are tapestried in colors that fascinate and bewilder the eyes. The light that fills the valleys is golden and rose-colored as it sits down through the royal canopies of the maples. Each lake is a jeweled bowl of light, turquoise and emerald and ruby.

Over all broods a blessed quiet. Footfalls pad softly on the leaves that have turned forest floors into cathedrals aisles carpeted by the magical looms of the sky. The air stirs gently. The leaves flutter down as from hands laid in benediction on a work-wear earth.

The sky is blue, the cool distant blue of the madonna's robe, painted by angels. The placid air is stitched through now and again by a bird's call—silver sound against blue stillness. The pines are blue to set off the bronze oaks and scarlet maples that form the gorgeous pattern of the hills. A flashing bluejay sends a streak of light across an old cedar. A gray squirrel claims his post on the old rail fence.

Spirit of Puritan Pervades

The pastures are moved and the red barns are filled. Little tents of cornstalks dot the fields where the browned pumpkin vines trace a pattern lovely in line and glorious in color from stonewall to stonewall.

Soon the pumpkins will be piled and stored in the cellar.

Out of the fields of New England, out of its homes and its hearts where the ideals of liberty expressed by the free conscience of its people were born, springs the traditions of our Thanksgiving Day. In them is the essence of the American spirit. All the strength bred of spiritual conviction, sturdy resistance to oppression, firm endurance of privation and sorrow, of a deep love for the enduring beauty and security of the land, are set deep in our Thanksgiving Day.

"Tis a wide span from New England to California? No. So short it is that a pumpkin vine has closed it.

Steinke, Olson Top Wrestling Program

Former Claims the World's Heavy Title; Show at Neenah

Neenah—The giants of the wrestling arena meet tonight at the S. A. Cook armory.

Hans Steinke, who is six feet, five inches tall and who weighs 260 pounds, trades holds with Olaf Olson, six feet, five inch 250 pounder from Milwaukee.

Steinke, a veteran of the wrestling game, has been in the United States for sixteen years. He came from Germany where he held the European Greco-Roman style world title. He was in the United States nearly a year when the New York State Athletic Commission recognized him as world's champion catch-as-catch-can heavyweight wrestler. He was defeated by a fellow countryman, Dick Shikat, a few months later and lost the title. Later, however he won over Shikat and now claims recognition as champion.

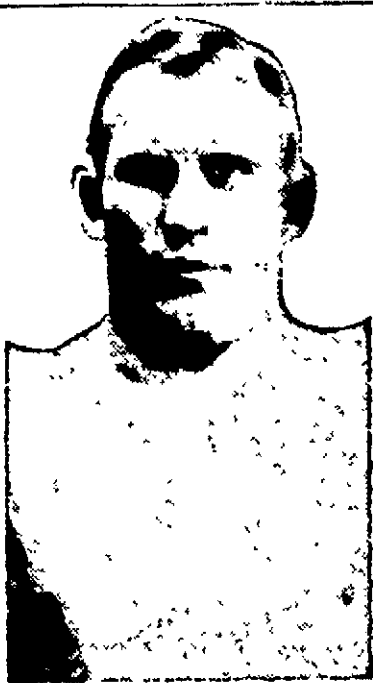

Olson, several years younger than his opponent, has wrestled many leading wrestlers in St. Louis, Chicago, Boston and New York City. Among the men he has wrestled are Jim London, Maurice Tillet known as "The Angel," Steve "Crusher" Casey and Ed "Strangler" Lewis former world's champion.

The Steinke-Olson windup is booked two best in three falls to a finish.

Howard Blazer of Green Bay meets Hans Bauer, New York German, in the semi-final event booked one fall, time limit thirty minutes. Blazer tips the scale at 205 pounds and Bauer 215 pounds.

Opening the night card is Ed Otto, Appleton heavyweight versus The Black Ace, Chicago colored star at 205 pounds.

Earl Otto, brother of Ed will referee. The show starts at 8:30.

Detroit Tigers Don't Even Get Telephone Calls

American League's Rule on Champion Clubs Is the Reason

Detroit—(AP)—Some of the zest is gone from life in the front office of the Detroit Tigers.

A good many weeks have passed since the Tigers won the American league championship, then bowed to the Cincinnati Reds in the world series, and General Manager Jack Zeller is lonesome.

The American league rule forbidding the champion from trading with other clubs in the league has lopped off a lot of Zeller's fun.

"Why," he said, "I haven't even had a chance to deny a rumor since we won the pennant."

Zeller's voice seemed sad. He said he missed the telephone calls from Clark Griffith of Washington, Joe Cronin of the Boston Red Sox, Cy Slapnicka of Cleveland, and Bill De Witt of the St. Louis Browns.

"Griff used to call up regularly to see if he could make a trade," Zeller said. "So did Cronin and Slap. We talked frequently with St. Louis and once in a while with Chicago."

"Even if we didn't get to first base on a deal—and usually we didn't—it was nice to hear from those fellows. It helped us to keep up with what was going on in the rest of the league."

"Now nobody calls up because they know we can't trade. The newspapers don't even call up to check rumors because there are no rumors about the Tigers."

Zeller indicated meantime that he wasn't ready yet to give up on the Tigers' ageing infield. He said he thought Charley Gehringer would start at second base next season, that Pinky Higgins would stick at third, and that Dick Bartell would be given every chance to hang onto shortstop.

Milwaukee Chiefs Will Play Buffalo Today

Milwaukee—(AP)—Milwaukee's Chiefs, smarting under the defeat given them by Kenosha, play the Buffalo Indians at State Fair park this afternoon in an American professional league football game.

The Chiefs faced the prospect of winning or dropping out of the championship picture inasmuch as they were a game behind the leading Columbus Bullies.

The Chiefs were without the services of their star guard, Len Akim, who was on the injured list.

Wisconsin-Minnesota Game Is Considered Spot for an Upset

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

Cincinnati—(AP)—The gossips say Carl Snively is shopping—which may or may not be in line with that rumored Cornell de-emphasizing program. Five clubs are bidding for Eddie Miller, star shortstop of the Boston Bees. Here's a tip: When Minnesota plays Wisconsin Saturday, the spot will be ripe for an upset if there ever was one.

Those who ought to know say the Texas Aggies haven't been unwrapped this season.

Monday A. M. Quarterbacks

Looks as if the boys around the drug store finally won a game on Monday—the one Cornell gave back to the Indians.

The Cocktail Hour

The Canisius college gridders were so pleased with their victory over Long Island U. they bought a pipe for Tuppy Kosack, former Cornell tackle, who scouted Long Island. Best line of the week was banded out by the fellow who called Clark Shaughnessy a "refugee from a string of Chicago roose-eggs."

Gus Dorais, Detroit U. coach, has joined the select circle of coaches who have won 100 football games for their schools. (You can count these guys on your fingers.) Well, boys and girls, the first of

Tommy Harmon Rates Eighth Among Rushers

Michigan Star Must Stage One-Man Show To Reach First Place

BY GAIL FOWLER

Seattle—(AP)—A few 1939 football statistical marks have already been gobbled up like today's turkey, but it appears that Michigan's Tom Harmon will have to stage a yard-eating feast against Ohio State Saturday if he's going to surpass his performance of last year.

American Football Statistical Bureau figures released today, show Harmon ranking eighth as a total offensive threat with 1,059 yards, compared to his 1939 total of 1,355 which ranks him second to UCLA's Kenny Washington.

In rushing, Harmon will have to pick up 160 yards Saturday to draw even with his 1939 total of 888 which he compiled in 129 rushes. He's tried 161 already this year for 708 yards.

Meanwhile, the irrepressible Johnny Knolla of Creighton occupied first place as the nation's total offensive leader with 1,151 yards. This already surpasses his 1939 mark of 1,104 yards which earned him seventh place, nationally.

A sophomore, Jimmy Reynolds of Oklahoma A. and M., ranks second to Knolla with 1,125 yards, with his 262 plays establishing him as the country's workhorse. Reynolds 191 rushes set a new record for the bureau's four years of existence, the previous high being 181 rushes by Whizzer White of Colorado in 1937, when White set the high modern rushing mark of 1,121 yards.

This latter figure is hardly endangered, although Al Ghesquiere of Detroit needs only 19 more yards Saturday to pass the 1939 mark of 882 rushing yards set by Wake Forest's John Polanski in 10 games.

Sevill Tops Passers

Bill Sewell of Washington State college continues to lead the nation's forward passers in the number of completions, with 65 bulls-eyes in 137 attempts. Fifteen were intercepted and he's accounted for 846 aerial yards. Sewell ranks sixth in total offense—gains both rushing and passing.

Paul Christman of Missouri, the "passingest" of the passers, leads in attempts with 141, and his 965 aerial yards in eight games already passes the 1939 mark of 962 set by Kay Eakin of Arkansas in 10 games.

Total offense—After Knolla and Reynolds come Ghesquiere, Detroit, 1,122; Christman, Missouri, 1,085; Jimmy Richardson, Marquette, 1,081; last week but injured in his subsequent game, 1,087.

Rushing offense—Ghesquiere, Detroit, 884; Harmon, Michigan, 708; Bob Westfall, Michigan, 669; Reynolds, Oklahoma A. and M., 659; Knolla, Creighton, 655.

Passing offense—Sewell, Washington State, 65 completions; Dave Alleridge, Princeton, 62; Christman, Missouri, 61; Dudley, Virginia, 56; Hal Hursh, Indiana, 50.

Pass receiving—Humbert, Richmond, still tops with 24 caught for 387 yards; Bryant, Virginia, 22 for 162; Krouse, Penn State, 21 for 370.

Punting—Owen Price, Texas Mines, idle at 48.15; Jack Jacobs, Oklahoma, 47.50; Dic McGowan, Auburn, 44.19.

Professor Helm Hands Out A Diploma

BY JAMES MARLOW

Lacombe, La.—(AP)—An instructor who steps on his students' toes and mixes tender caresses with stones and shotguns is hard at work near here with his usual large class.

He is Mick Helm, owner and instructor at a "bird dog university."

He will train a dog to hunt, be decent in the house, stop barking, and work on the honor system.

His "university" is deep in the woods two miles from Lacombe. The classroom is his backyard. The campus is a vast stretch of piney woods and weedy fields.

Helm teaches all day long to get his charges in readiness for opening of the quail season Dec. 1.

He takes all kinds of dogs but his specialty is bird dogs: setters, spaniels and retrievers. These are given two three-month courses; the first for three months just before the season, the second at the same time the following year.

Gets Diploma

At the end of the second semester, before the proud master, Helm hands the animal a diploma.

Some of Helm's training tips: "You must never lose your temper with a dog you are training even if he bites you. It's all right to hit him with a stick or peg stones at him to keep him under control but always caress him when he does the right thing."

"Don't raise your voice when he does the wrong thing. If you get excited, the dog knows it. To train him to do one thing, use one word or some simple phrase."

To break a dog of the barking habit, Helm says, dash a glass of water in his face as many times as necessary. To housebreak a dog, catch him in the act of committing a nuisance—not afterwards—and drive him outdoors with a slap for good measure.

Helm has a careful routine for training bird dogs. Training details start with having the owner leave quietly so that the new student will not grieve. Then Helm spends an entire day feeding and petting the dog to gain his confidence.

Short Hanks First

The dog is first taken on short training hunt, taught to fetch and to drop, on command, what he has brought. That's where the stepping on toes comes in—to get the dog to open his mouth suddenly. Then the dog is taught to look back at the sound of a whistle while hunting and move in the direction the hunter indicates.

Dogs are on the end of a long rope for such training and if, when the rope is taken off, the dog disobeys and runs off, he goes back on the rope. Next time, Helm hides along the runaway route and peppers the misbehaving animal with pellets from a slingshot.

Shotguns are not fired close to the animals at first. Dogs are brought closer and closer to the gun until, finally, they will stand at point beside the gun. To reassure dogs made timid by the sound of a shotgun blast too close to them, Helm first uses cap pistols. After each shot he caresses the dog, working on up the firearm line with pistols, rifles, and shotguns again.

The "honor system" must be taught so that dogs who come upon another dog already pointing will not jealously step up and rout the birds before the hunter shows up.

Chuters Prepare for Opener With Neenah

Little Chute—Little Chute A. A. cagers, entrants in the Valley Home Talent league, have been holding strenuous workouts the past week in preparation for their opening tilt with the Kimberly-Clark Ramblers of Neenah at their court Nov. 27. Green Bay Gordon Beris will open the locals home schedule on Dec. 4.

A setback was handed the locals as Ory Bongers, regular center, turned his ankle, and will be out for a month. Regulars will be Lefty Wildenberg, Don Peeters, Bernie Bongers, Ernie and Joe Versteeg, Moose Van Dyke, and Duco Weyenberg, with Nic Jansen and Roger Koehn to comprise the lineup of ten listed players.

The second stringers will have Red Bost, Hank Van Lankfeldt, Mel Van Asten, Jack Lamers, Leo Lamers, Conny Vanden Heuvel and Boney Versteeg.

Illinois Gets Its Last Chance Against Iowa

Too Many Good Backs With Opponents Has Stopped Zup's Team

BY ARNOLD DEKLETZKE

Chicago—(AP)—The luckless Illinois football eleven, handicapped by injuries to key men from the season's start, gets its last chance at a Western conference victory this week.

To date the Illini not only have failed to win any of their four starts, but also hold the dubious distinction of having been the only team to suffer a shutout in 1940 conference play.

It came at the hands of Michigan, a 28-0 setback. Ohio State avoided a shutout against Northwestern by scoring a field goal, but in all other 18 conference games, the loser tallied at least one touchdown.

The Illini make their final bid Saturday against Iowa, which warmed up to the occasion by dealing Notre Dame its first defeat of the season last week. But if the Illini fail again, Coach Bob Zuppke has an answer: that glittering parade of star backs that ran the slower Illini dizzy week after week.

"First there were Bob Peoples and Robertson of Southern California," says Zup. "Then Harmon of Michigan; Jzwik of Notre Dame; Paskvan of Wisconsin; Hahnstein of Northwestern, and Scott and Langhurst of Ohio State."

"And now," Zup adds, "now our scouts tell us this Bill Green of Iowa is the best runner they have seen since Harmon."

The last time Illinois finished without a conference triumph was in 1937 when it met Purdue, Michigan, Northwestern, Wisconsin, Chicago and Ohio State.

Work Against Hawk Plays

The Illini drilled against third stringers using Iowa formations yesterday. The Hawkeyes, meantime, got set for a barrage of Illini passes.

Michigan, which meets Ohio State in a battle to determine runnerup honors to champion Minnesota, groomed sophomore George Ceithaml for Forest Evashevski's quarterback post. Evashevski was out of uniform yesterday because of illness. However, Harmon, also on the sick list, worked out.

Wisconsin, confident it has a chance to upset Minnesota and snap the string of successes the Gophers have recorded against the Badgers since 1923, had a brisk drill.

Bernie Bierman, never one to underestimate a foe, had this to say of his Gophers: "I hope the boys can last out one more Saturday; Wisconsin has been moving up rapidly and we can expect as tough a game from the Badgers as we have had all year."

Purdue worked on defense against Indiana plays. Neither team got very far this year, but a sellout crowd of 31,000 persons was expected to watch Indiana try for its first oaken bucket victory in five years.

Northwestern, its conference season ended, worked on plays for Saturday's finale with Notre Dame.

Johnny Kilbane to Be Ohio Senator

BY LARRY HAUCK

Cleveland—(AP)—Johnny Kilbane, world featherweight champion two decades ago, is going to fight again—with words.

The silver-haired Irishman, still as trim as a college halfback, will start his "comeback" in January when he enters the Ohio legislature as a state senator.

"Before, I was fighting for myself—to eat, to get some place in the world," the Clevelander said today. "This time I'm going to battle for the people—especially the underprivileged and the youngsters."

"Some people think it's funny a prize fighter should become a senator. Why? I came up from the bottom. I know our problems and I am going to keep swinging, until I help those who need help."

Kilbane won his boxing title in 1912 from Abe Attell and lost it to Eugene Ciriqli in 1923. He has spent most of the ensuing years in physical education work.

Now 51, Kilbane was elected on the Democratic ticket, but "I have just as many friends who are Republicans," he observed. "I think they'll help me with my welfare program too after I sell them on the idea."

Few Games on Football Card

East's Program Is Topped by Fordham Tilt With Arkansas

New York—(AP)—The Thanksgiving football fare today is almost as bare as the Thanksgiving turkey will be tomorrow.

There was a time when this holiday was just about the biggest moment in any football season. That was when Armistice day, election day or any other red letter date on the calendar was considered set aside for the college schedule makers.

As a result, the only game in the east today involving a major team will be Fordham's fracas with Arkansas at the local polo grounds.

The Rams are once-beaten and the Razorbacks have won only two out of seven engagements so the flavor of the offering has been somewhat impaired.

Fans in the Baltimore area will be entertained, presumably, by the battle of a strong little eleven from Rutgers and the staggering Terrapins of the University of Maryland, who have won only one game and scored but two touchdowns this season.

In the south the spotlight will be focused on the southern conference, which has two games on tap. Virginia Military and Virginia Tech will keep their annual gridiron date while the University of Richmond Spiders engage William and Mary.

The headliner for the rest of the country will be the annual struggle between Kansas and Missouri, with "Pitchin' Paul" Christman making a farewell appearance for the Tigers.

Undeclared Texas Tech and St. Louis University come to grips in another leading mid-western dispute.

Valley Home Talent League Is All Set to Go Next Week

Kimberly — Player lists were submitted, officials approved and the season schedule adopted at a meeting at the clubhouse last night of the Valley Home Talent basketball players, managers and the commissioner, George McElroy. The group voted to play a split season with only a 1-game playoff because the Hartford tournament starts one week after the season closes March 27. All the managers reported that they are ready for the open next week and that all teams will be extremely strong.

Team managers and teams entered are C. A. Bohr, Clintonville Auctioneers; W. H. Kersten, Bondel; Bob Geitner, Sturgeon Bay Eagles; Norbert Graves, Gordon Bents, Green Bay; Fred Block, Smith-Kiefer Clothiers, Menasha; Harold Van Dyke, Little Chute A.; Joe Gossens, Kimberly A. A.; Don Raiche, Kimberly-Clark Ramblers, Neenah; Charles Block, Kaukauna City team; and Eddie Dancisk, Elm Tree Bakers, Appleton.

The Valley Home Talent league will provide a good brand of basketball within reach of valley fans because of the relatively small distance between the different towns. It is expected that each squad will have a large number of followers as the season progresses. Last year Kimberly and Elm Trees were in the Wisconsin-Michigan league, taking them some distance that fans could not follow the games.

Next Week's Schedule
Kimberly goes to Bondel Sunday while Kaukauna will play at Green Bay Tuesday. Little Chute will invade Neenah Wednesday and on Thursday Menasha will entertain Sturgeon Bay and Clintonville will trek to Appleton.

Players for the various teams are as follows: Gordon Bent, Green Bay will show John Rose, Vernon Capelle, Lawrence Fitchett, Cliff Osen, William Burch, Roland Kennedy, Bernard Wolfe, Homer Wetzig, Robert Zimonich, Vernon Anderson, Robert Scheer, Palmyro Mazzoleni, and Fred Schwartz. ## 'Tug' Wilson Knew N.U. Would Lose When Boys Asked to Study

John Petty, the 210-pound back who has turned in a good game for Coach Mal Elward every time Purdue went into battle this season, may be back in the Big Nine football wars even though this is his senior year at Lafayette. As a sophomore in 1938 Petty got into just one Purdue game and for only a minute in that one. In Purdue's game with University of Detroit that year Petty was chased out from the bench to make good on a place-kick conversion. Thereafter injuries kept him from action. Now Purdue proposes to petition the Western Conference, hopeful that Petty's minute in '38 will be canceled. And in the event the Big Nine sees things Purdue's way Petty will be back next year and fairly busy, too, since large John passes, place kicks, calls signals, does the line backing and much of the ball-carrying.

There is precedent on Purdue's side in this case. If you'll recall

Paul Christman In Last Game This Afternoon "Laughing Boy" to Close Grid Career Before 20,000 Fans

BY HAROLD CLAASSEN

Columbia, Mo. — Tradition has pulled crowds to the Kansas-Missouri football games for 48 years. Today the expected 20,000 spectators at their forty-ninth meeting will be there saying farewell to a tow-headed kid, Paul Christman, the Tigers' laughing boy.

Even the forecasts of near-freezing temperatures and murky skies won't keep them away.

Christman, just in case you aren't abreast of your gridironology, is the young man who has gained approximately two and a quarter miles of ground while in control of a football for a trio of Missouri teams on 26 different fall afternoons.

Mr. Christman will go down in Big Six history for the 413 passes he has thrown up to today, for the 189 that reached their mark and for the 3,822 yards he gained by both running and passing.

But he also will be remembered as the young man who came to college—first to Purdue and then to Missouri—with the somewhat original idea that football could be played for fun as well as keeps.

That's the reason for his "Verily, I stinketh" while reclining on that portion of his body midway between head and heels in the 19 to 0 shellacking by Ohio State last season.

One glance at the mirror convinced him his slightly pugged nose wasn't a bit sinister and that he couldn't qualify as the boo-boo type of player.

Since then he's laughed his way through despite an inward nervousness that makes it impossible to eat on the day of a game and sends him to church for an hour's meditation before each opening kickoff.

Varsity Defeats Lawrence Frosh

Yearlings Take Play From Upperclassmen And Lead at Quarter

A Challenging Lawrence college freshman basketball team gave the 1940-41 varsity a strenuous workout in a regulation game in Alexander gymnasium last night before going down to defeat by a score of 26 to 21.

Paced by Dick Miller of Evans-ton, the yearlings matched the varsity in baskets and missed again as many close ones, but were outscored from the free throw line mainly because they had less opportunity. The frosh, on baskets by Haslinger, Miller, and Rollins, took a 6 to 0 lead on their superiors but Crossett dropped in a free throw just before the whistle to prevent the varsity from being shut out for the first quarter.

Crossett then dropped in three baskets along with one by Frederickson and one by Fieweger to give his team a 12 to 8 lead at the half. This was stretched to 21 to 15 at the three quarter mark only to have the Frosh come back to give them a scare in the final stanza.

Sophomores took the play away from the veterans, especially in the case of Bill Crossett of Racine who looks like the best center prospect that Coach A. C. Denney has had in some time. He looked especially good on side shots, connecting for four which, with 3 free tosses, gave him high point honors. Phil Harvey, another soph, was the only other varsity man to score more than one basket. Haslinger, a rugged guard was high point man for the frosh with four baskets, but it was Miller's floor game and accurate passing that stood out.

Washington continues to lead in ground gaining with 2,839 yards and in scoring with 225 points. New York, the Chicago Cardinals and Detroit are the best defensive units, holding opponents to 1,663 yards, 33 per cent pass completions and 103 points, respectively.

Wisconsin State Loop Accepts Janesville Bid

Final Admission to Depend on Circuit's Getting Eighth Club

BY GORDON MCINTYRE
Janesville — Janesville will be admitted to the Wisconsin State Baseball league if another team in a reasonable geographical location can be secured to make an eighth club, the circuit decided at a meeting here last night.

Janesville appears to have everything to make a good club, the league was informed, but it was admitted that the team couldn't be taken into the circuit unless an eighth club could be found. Austin, Minn., 75 miles from LaCrosse, was given no consideration and the Oshkosh situation isn't far enough advanced for the league to consider it as a basis for action.

There was a comment that Madison interests might want a berth in the Milwaukee Brewers gave up their Three-I league franchise which was operated in Madison this year. The league indicated the addition of Madison would be ideal.

Herman White, Eau Claire, was re-elected president and B. M. Neary, Eau Claire secretary, with-out opposition. White told the group after being nominated, he would just as soon not have the job but there was no opposition in the form of another candidate and he was re-named.

Otto Kaufmann, Sheboygan, Verne Lewellen, Green Bay, and C. O. Baetz, Appleton, were named as a schedule committee and a ball adopted for the season. The league voted to pay one umpire 4 cents a mile for use of his own car to end the need for umpires traveling from one town to the other with a team.

Numerous other matters were discussed briefly on the floor but no action was taken primarily because the suggestions were incorporated in resolutions and the resolutions committee had not met. They were laid over to the Dec. 22 meeting scheduled for Appleton.

Every city in the league was represented by two or more persons except Green Bay which was not represented.

The government says Brazil now has 125,000 miles of roads. Unofficial estimates are that perhaps 20 to 25 per cent can be called good roads. The greatest share of the mileage is in the southern and central-coastal sections.

Little Chute, Kimberly Will Renew Rivalry

Teams Will Clash On St. John Floor Friday Evening

Little Chute — Kimberly High school cagers will invade St. John gym Friday evening to battle the St. John cagers in the first of a home-and-home series. The locals will return to the Papermaker court the following Friday.

The Papermakers are tops in the Little Nine conference while St. John is entered in the Catholic conference. The games will be exhibition contests. Both clubs were evenly matched last season but the locals emerged victorious in both contests, going two overtime periods at Little Chute and one overtime period at Kimberly to win.

Kimberly has lost three regulars, including Johnny Van Cuyk, Q. Williams and Joe Wyngaard, while St. John also lost three, Harold Dercks, Conny Vanden Heuvel and Stan Versteegen. Returning lettermen of the Papermakers are C. Gaffney, F. Vander Velden, C. Vanden Velden, J. Gaffney, P. Smith, D. Larson, R. Willis and F. Van Cuyk.

St. John regulars of last season who are in uniform this season are Woody Mc Cabe, Harold Vanden Heuvel, Jimmy Koehn, Jim Vanden Heuvel, Merlin Versteegen and Gerry Hietpas. Coach Bernie Bongers has a number of reserves of last season to fall back on and all may see action before the final horn.

St. John opens its conference season against Lourdes High of Marinette Tuesday, Dec. 3, at the local gym.

Friday's game will start at 8 o'clock with a preliminary at 7 between the B squads of the two schools.

Kimberly — Kimberly High school cagers will open their basketball season in a non-conference game at Little Chute with St. John High Friday evening. Next week Friday Little Chute will come to the village for a return game.

The fans usually go for these practice games in a big way. Both teams battle for all that is in it. Kimberly has been weakened by the loss of a few star men through graduation and, in addition, David Smith moved to La Crosse in October, thus making the team of an unknown quality this year.

They may or may not have the stuff to take another conference title. Hamann has several good men left over from last year but it is too early to pick a key man to steady the drive. The Papermakers have always started slow but with a few games under their belt, are hard to outscore.

The team's win over West Allis last spring was the highlight of the season. Kimberly's victory over the Class A school showed that the Papermakers were well coached. This is another season and it may be Little Chute's turn to be on the short end of the score but all in all it doesn't appear to be that way. Last season the Dutchmen took both games after overtime periods decided the final result.

Packers May Start Best Rockies Against Lions

Green Bay — Coach E. L. (Curly) Lambeau declared today that the Green Bay Packers still were very much in the fight for the Western division championship of the National Football League.

He said that the Packers were determined to win their two remaining games.

Yesterday Lambeau separated his better recruits into a group and hinted that they might start the game against the Lions at Detroit Sunday.

If the Packers win both of their remaining two games, and if the Chicago Bears lose one of theirs, the teams would tie for the championship of the Western division.

Detroit, however, is tied with the Packers for second place in the race.

Kaukauna High School Cagers Maul East Bays

Green Bay — Kaukauna High school cagers mauled Green Bay East here last night in a non-conference game, 36 to 15. The Kaws led 11 to 6 at the quarter and 17 to 11 at the half. In the third quarter, East went scoreless and Kaukauna held a 29 to 11 advantage. The Kaws perform in the western division of the Northeastern conference and the Red Devils in the Fox Valley.

Voters Divided on Question Of Repealing Johnson Act

Princeton, N. J. — A few weeks before the Nov. 5 election Senator King (Dem.) of Utah made front-page headlines with a proposal to repeal the Johnson act and clear the way for U. S. government loans to Britain.

Neither the Democrats nor the Republicans would touch the issue during the campaign, however.

Some indication of the close division of American sentiment on this issue is revealed today in a nation-wide survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion. The results make it appear to have been good political strategy at least for the major parties to avoid this particular issue in the presidential campaign.

The survey shows that while a small majority favor making it possible for Britain to borrow here—even to the point of repealing the Johnson act—opinion is so closely divided that a real knock-down-and-drag-out struggle may lie ahead before such a change could be effected.

Some indication of the public's attitude can be found in the answers of a cross-section of American voters to the following question: "The Johnson act prevents any country which has stopped paying interest on its debt of the last World war from borrowing money in the United States. Would you approve of changing this law so that England could borrow money from our government?"

Those with definite opinions on the question answered:
Favor changing act.....54%
Opposed to changing act, 46%
An average of one voter in eight said he was undecided or without an opinion.

Democrats interviewed in the survey were more in favor of Johnson act repeal (60% in favor) than were Republicans (47% in favor.)

That there has been some shift of opinion on the whole question of loans to Britain since last spring is indicated, however.

When the same question was put to voters at the end of May—before the collapse of France had darkened the war picture for Great Britain—65 per cent of those interviewed said "no" to any change in the Johnson act. Only 35 per cent were in favor of clearing the way for British loans.

It is safe to say that more Americans look with sympathy toward such loans today than six months ago. But whether this sentiment will continue to grow may depend on the discussion given Senator King's resolution, and similar resolutions, when the new Congress meets in January.

Will Britain Needs Loans
"As long as Britain holds her own, there's no reason for us to go down in the sock again," is the way a New York voter put it. "After all, we're just beginning to borrow and tax for our own rearmament program."

Time and again voters recalled the United States' experience with unpaid World war loans.

On the other side, however, voters favoring loans to Britain stood on the grounds that "England's our first line of defense; we can give them dollars if we don't give them men." Some questioned whether Britain would need loans at this time.

Economists themselves are in disagreement on this latter point. In the last war the Allies borrowed large sums here but did not liquidate vast capital reserves held by British citizens in other parts of the world. Some financial experts, including Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, have in the past held that British capital reserves are great enough for present purposes at least.

Perhaps the increasing interest in air mail covers is one of the reasons for the new "correo aereo" stamp set from Argentina. Already the new air mails are coming into this country regularly on covers.

They are the first Argentina air-mails since 1932 and comprise the first series since 1928. Among them are a 30-centavo deep orange, a one-peso carmine, and a 2.50 peso blue, all showing the shadow of a plane on the back of an envelope.

The design for another is a picture of Mercury in flight against a background of a plane in a 50-c brown, and a fifth — 1.25-p blue green — shows a monoplane in flight.

AZTECS
Most barnyard fowls were brought to this continent from Asia. There wasn't a hen of the barnyard type in either North or South America when white men crossed the Atlantic.

Turkeys were common, however. Thousands of them were to be found in forests from Canada down to Central America.

Wild turkeys exist to this day in various parts of the United States, and in a few sections are fairly common. A Texas hunter wrote me a letter about the good turkey hunting not a great distance from San Antonio.

Mexico and Central America, however, are the places where wild turkeys are found in greatest number. Central America has a special kind of wild turkey; it has a bright coat of green, black and yellow feathers, and is red and blue about the head and neck.

Mexico's wild turkeys live both in mountains and in valleys. They make their nests on the ground, in shallow holes lined with leaves. The turkey hen lays from eight to 20 eggs in her nest. Like baby chicks, the baby wild turkeys are able to walk quickly after they hatch from the eggs. In company with their mother, they wander about in search of food. In two weeks they are able to fly.

When Spaniards entered Mexico more than 400 years ago, they saw turkeys for the first time. They never had seen such birds in Spain, and people in other parts of Europe had not seen them.

Wild turkeys were not the only kind which the Spaniards saw. There were many tame ones as well. Flocks of turkeys were kept by the Aztec Indians.

One reason the Aztecs kept these fowls was to make use of their feathers. The feathers were valued for decoration.

Some idea of the many turkeys in Mexico may be gained from an entry in an old Aztec account-book. In this record we find that 8,000 turkeys had been obtained for the royal palace in Mexico City.

After Mexico was conquered, the Spaniards sent a number of tame turkeys to Spain. That seems to have been the start of turkey-raising by farmers in Europe. Since then, turkeys have become barnyard fowls on thousands of farms in Europe as well as in the New World.

Turkeys on farms in our land are descended from those the Aztecs kept in flocks.

Nearly 65,000 Square Feet of Sidewalks Laid

15,400 Feet of Storm And Sanitary Sewers Constructed at Neenah

Neenah — Nearly 65,000 square feet of sidewalks were constructed under the city-WPA program last summer, City Engineer A. G. Prunuske reported today.

A large amount of construction and improvement work was completed by the engineering and street departments of the city during the period from Nov. 13, 1939 and Nov. 12 of this year, the engineer's report showed.

Exactly 15,400 feet of storm and sanitary sewers were constructed as city crews this week opened a new program of sewer projects, beginning at Elm street.

The report showed 9,069 feet of curbs and gutters laid during the year. The curbs were 36 inches in width. On the sidewalk work, 834 cubic yards of concrete was poured while 698 cubic yards of concrete was used on the curb and gutter jobs.

The engineer reported that 14,610 square feet of old concrete was removed and hauled in the sidewalk program and there were 866 cubic yards of excavation.

Storm Sewers — In construction of storm sewers, 8,339 feet of pipe was laid, and the average cut was 7 feet 6 inches. Besides the pipe, there were 26 manholes built, 118 catch basin inlets and 12 catch basins. About 1,000 cubic yards of rock was excavated. Included in the pipe laid were 3,681 feet of 12-inch, 1,314 feet of 15-inch, 977 feet of 10-inch and 2,387 feet of 8-inch.

In sanitary sewer construction, the average cut for which was 10 feet 6 inches, 2,728 feet of 15-inch pipe was laid, 897 feet of 12-inch, 912 feet of 8-inch, and 2,524 feet of 6-inch, totaling 7,061 feet. Besides, 17 manholes were built, 492 square yards of pavement removed and 502 square yards replaced.

About 120,000 paving brick was salvaged from Wisconsin avenue in both projects.

Truck, Car Damaged In Neenah Accident

Neenah — A truck driven by Robert Ryan, 245 First street, and a car driven by M. J. Vanderhoof, Milwaukee, were damaged in a collision at 11:45 Wednesday morning on S. Commercial street.

Neenah police were told that both machines were traveling south on S. Commercial street when the accident occurred. The left rear fender on the truck and the right side of the car were damaged.

Menasha Seniors Will Present Comedy Dec. 6

Menasha — Seniors of Menasha High school are preparing to present their class play, "Heads for Eden," Friday, Dec. 6, in the Menasha High school auditorium. The comedy, written especially for high school groups by Sidney Duvall, author of many successes, is purported to be among the funniest comedies of the season.

Miss Betty Ann Johnson is directing the play.

The Twin Cities office of the Appleton Post-Crescent for its editorial, circulation and display advertising departments is located at 510 N. Commercial street, and the telephone number is 4100. News items, copy or orders for display advertising and orders for subscriptions may be left at the office or telephoned. ## Display Homemakers Books At Elisha D. Smith Library

Menasha — A homemakers' corner has been established by the staff of Elisha D. Smith library in cooperation with the school of vocational and adult education.

A display showing a model room, complete with miniature upholstered chair, occasional table, table lamp, floor lamp, window drapes, pictures on the walls, and even a bird cage has been prepared by Miss Ruth Commentz, member of the library staff, as the center of the display. An outdoor background drawn by Miss Commentz can be seen through the window of the model room.

Also on the display are numerous books in the homemaking field from the library stacks. ## DeMolay Unit Holds Fourth Annual Rally

Over 100 Hear Judge S. J. Luchsinger at Temple in Neenah

Menasha — More than 100 members of Winnebago chapter, Order of DeMolay, and Twin City Masons attended the fourth annual round-up of Winnebago chapter Wednesday night at the Neenah Masonic temple. The event also marked the twenty-first anniversary of DeMolay in the state of Wisconsin.

Municipal Judge S. J. Luchsinger, Oshkosh, stressed the need of a program financial, moral, and educational, for everyone in the main address. He cited numerous examples showing the advantage of a sound financial program whether a person earns $15 or $50 a week.

He warned the audience that accumulating wealth alone will not bring happiness and urged everyone to do a good deed whenever possible, saying that such actions pay dividends.

Norton J. Williams, president of the Neenah board of education, acted as toastmaster. He reviewed the year 1919 when Woodrow Wilson was president of the United States, when Jack Dempsey won the heavyweight boxing championship, and when the peace treaty of the first world war was being negotiated, which also was the year when DeMolay was founded in Wisconsin.

William "Dad" McCready complimented Winnebago chapter on its fine record and its turnout for the round-up. The Rev. Gerald C. Churchill, pastor of the First Congregational church, gave the invocation before the banquet. Hugh Sutton led the community singing.

Arrangements for the round-up were made by a committee including George Robinson, chairman; Gilbert Krueger, Ivan Kuester, Arthur Peterson, and Jack Stroble. Special awards at the banquet included a duck to Stanley Hass, a chicken to E. R. Rhodes, and a "golden" egg to Lamar Foth.

$500 Granted to Plant Aquatic Foods in Lakes

County Board Acts On Request of Poygan Restoration Group

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh — An appropriation of $500 was granted to the Poygan Restoration association by the Winnebago county board yesterday afternoon by a 32 to 10 vote, the money to be used to plant wild rice and aquatic foods in the various lakes and marshes in the county.

The release of the money was made contingent upon the state legislature passing laws prohibiting the harvesting or taking away by the public of the aquatic foods in restored areas. The resolution was introduced by Supervisor E. G. Sonnenberg, Menasha conservation committee.

M. W. Finney, Menasha, president of the association, told the county board yesterday that Assemblyman Mark Catlin, Jr., of Appleton, was planning to introduce in the 1941 legislature a bill which would protect the aquatic foods planted in restored areas in the state.

The original resolution of the Poygan Restoration association asked for a $1,000 grant but the board yesterday afternoon decided to give the association only half the desired amount. The money will be paid out on vouchers to the county clerk through the association, which have been certified and approved by the state game warden's office.

Mr. Finney said that the area around Lakes Poygan, Winnebago, and Butte des Morts, and along the Wolf river were a fine time one of the best places for waterfowl shooting, but that the building of dams at Neenah and Menasha had ruined the value of these lakes as a habitat for ducks. Bogs drifted away along with many acres used for the growing of wild rice and aquatic foods.

Bredging Proposed — A project for the dredging of the Wolf river and the throwing up of banks to control the current has been submitted to the United States War department, Finney said. He added that plans were being made to rid the lakes and river of the carp and other rough fish which feed on the wild rice.

The county board yesterday afternoon also appropriated $500 to help support the Oshkosh Public museum and $100 to the county superintendent of schools to be used for conservation work. The supervisors authorized the purchase of a check protector for the county clerk's office, setting aside $100 for that purchase.

A resolution granting $500 from the contingent fund to be used in support of a county-wide citizenship program, such as the induction of the new voters, was passed yesterday by a 23 to 19 vote but was brought back for reconsideration by Supervisor Charles Korotev of Neenah. The resolution as submitted by the education committee called for an appropriation of $350 but the amount was raised to $500 on an amendment made by Supervisor Byron Gunz of the town of Black Wolf.

The motion adopting the resolution squeezed through by a 23 to 19 vote. After other business had been transacted, Supervisor Joseph Meigher of the village of Winnebago returned the attention of the county board to the citizenship program grant which was introduced by the education committee which he heads.

Supervisor Korotev moved that the resolution be reconsidered and Supervisor Gunz then moved that the resolution be laid over until the education committee could meet with the officers of the Twenty-Oners, an organization of new voters, and decide how much will be needed to support a county-wide citizenship program.

The county board then adjourned until next Tuesday, taking a 5-day vacation so that several supervisors can take advantage of the deer hunting season.

Johnson Gives Thanks for Strength of United America

BY HUGH S. JOHNSON

Washington—It usually isn't easy to write one of these set-pieces expected on feast-days and holidays. There is too much smug serenity in dishing up a lot of platitudes that are in everybody's mind anyway. Especially on Thanksgiving day—whether it be the new one said to have been suggested by Sydney Hillman and adopted by the president, or the old one which George Washington and Abraham Lincoln seemed to think the Pilgrim Fathers favored. This time I feel differently about it. I want to write this piece.

Many of us didn't like that switch of Thanksgiving when it was made, but now I am not so sure. There is ample justification for us to have two Thanksgivings days. I think there is justification for 365 of them—not food-gorging turkey days but silently in our hearts.

"When thou prayest, enter into thy closet and when thou hast shut the door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly."

Maybe writing a column about it isn't following that injunction very well, but I'm not praying. I'm just giving thanks.

I'm thankful for 3,000 miles of blue salt water on one side and 6,000 miles on the other side of our country, between us and perfect hell. I'm thankful that we have just had one of the most hotly contested campaigns and elections in my lifetime, in which many of us got mad at a lot of people and a lot of people got mad at us and we fought it out bitterly, but that immediately thereafter, we all accepted the result and in the face of outside dangers have drawn closer to each other in one compact front than we have been for years.

Unity Imparts Confidence
In Form Of Government

I'm especially thankful for this because, regardless of my sincere misgivings, it gave me a greater confidence in our form of government and the temper of our people than I had before. The conduct of the winners as well as, or even more than, that of the losers has given me more confidence in this administration than I have had in a very long time. I am deeply grateful for that.

This year, I have had more than my usual crop of apprehensions, sorrows, disappointments, losses and sadness for the suffering of some others whom I know and millions whom I do not know. But when I look abroad and see the populations of whole empires in such agonies and persecutions as have not been visited on mankind since the Dark Ages, I realize that we are living in a comparative paradise on earth. The man who could silence his gratitude for that hasn't got much of what it takes to be grateful—a human heart.

We too are going to have to suffer greater restrictions and hardships and sacrifices than we think, but there again, in comparison with what others are enduring we have the brightest hope on earth. It depends on us alone, and I am thankful for that also because I am confident that we can depend on us alone.

If only we can remain united, tolerant, free and conscious of that very dependence on each other which is our strength—the strength of any democracy—if only we can remain as we are today, there is no danger so great that we cannot dispel it. And, above all, in this world of destruction and peril, I am thankful for that simple truth.

Two Protest Improvement of State Park Near Two Rivers

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau)

Madison — Over the protests of two of its members, the state conservation commission today had approved the erection of $21,000 worth of building improvements at Point Beach state forest, northeastern Wisconsin's newest state recreation area.

It was explained that WPA funds will supply most of the cost, and that the contribution of the state as sponsor will be about $1,800. A residence for a custodian of the park, shops and shelter and garage are included in the plans for the new state recreational area along Lake Michigan north of Two Rivers in Manitowish county.

Commissioners Mark Catlin of Appleton and Wally Adams of Conover figured that the investment was too heavy for the park area, which is now less than 800 acres. Catlin protested that maintenance costs in the future would be excessive. "And even if it is WPA money, somebody is going to have to pay for it," he exostulated.

Approved Plan

The commission approved the plan, however, after conservation department men had explained that a permanent dwelling for the custodian will be necessary, and their belief that the park will become one of the most desirable in the populous Lake Michigan shore area in the future.

It was heavily used last summer, department men explained, although it was not yet completed. The state bought land along the shore last year, which was increased by a grant from the federal government, and additional purchases by Manitowish county and the city of Two Rivers.

According to H. W. McKenzie, the $21,000 figure was high because of Hollywood — Today is Thanksgiving—unless (1) you live in a state which does not recognize the President's re-dating of that holiday or (2) you live in one of the war-stricken countries or (3) you are still paying off election bets, or (4) you are beginning to worry about X-mas bills. Otherwise, as I said before, today is Thanksgiving.

This town has much to be thankful for. Top stars may be thankful that producers, as yet, haven't started chopping salaries. Producers can be thankful that bankers, as yet, haven't done anything about the colossal paychecks issued to producers. Studios can be thankful for American tolerance which condones the poor average quality of pictures and makes business survival possible despite the loss of European markets. Off-hand, I can't think of anything for the bankers to be thankful for—but bankers are unpopular these days, anyway, so we needn't worry about them.

Lana Turner can be thankful for Tony Martin—and Tony for Lana. Connie Bennett can give thanks she's no longer a marquis, and Jawn Barrymore can praise Allah because, this year, no one else will demand a slice of his turkey. Harold Lokes and Madame Perkins can sing hosannas because the Deal is still New, and Jackie Cooper has grown enough whiskers to make shaving something more than self-delusion. And we hoipolloi can, of course, be thankful that Dorothy Lamour's rebellion against sarongs was not a success.

It's been a hectic year—but it could have been worse!

Heil Prefers Diversion to Added Taxes

Evidence Points to Transfer of Larger
Sums From Road Fund

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — Governor Julius P. Heil has no intention of discontinuing the diversion of funds from the state highway department to the general treasury during his second term, high administration authorities declared today.

On the contrary, all the evidence points to the conclusion that the administration will take advantage of increased highway receipts to divert even larger amounts to meet contemplated new expenditures in the next biennial state budget.

Apparently feeling that the choice is between new taxation and highway fund diversion, administration authorities have decided that diversion is the more feasible alternative.

"It is state money," one high administration source said, "and why shouldn't we use some of it if we need it."

Relatively Good System

It was explained that the state's public road system is relatively good, and that the huge amounts of highway revenues now available were not contemplated when the legislature enacted the road taxes for the maintenance of the highway system.

Apparently it is the belief of the Heil administration that as long as the state government is able to match federal construction and maintenance allotments, build immediately necessary highways and bridges, and meet obligations to local government highway budgets, the surplus can properly be used for general state obligations.

That report was strengthened at Governor Heil's press conference here Tuesday afternoon, when he admitted that big new expenditures are expected in several directions, but when he refused to admit that he was considering the probability of new revenue legislation.

The governor announced that he would sponsor a retirement system for state employees, which will and relatives: I have been given a deny. "I am being silly," she said apologetically, burying her face in her hands.

Temu rose and bent over her. "This has been a trying day for you. We shall leave you now."

"Don't go!" she cried looking up. "Don't leave me alone. Stay until we hear from Dick."

The young man turned to the cost up to $1,000,000 for the first state budget, that he will support a demand for a new dairy building at the University of Wisconsin, and that large increases in pension appropriations are inevitable.

Budget Unbalanced

Because the budget of the state government is presently unbalanced, such expenditures can be made only through increased diversion of highway taxes, or new general taxes.

During the present biennium, the general fund appropriated about $8,000,000 of the receipts of highway taxes. Because those taxes are steadily rising, it will be possible to appropriate still larger amounts during the next two years, without further curtailing the highway program.

The governor has frequently pointed out also that because of more careful buying policies, his administration has been able to improve more highways for less money.

When a soldier needs a friend, the American Red Cross and all its facilities are available to him. Captain Ronald W. Schmidt, of the Clintonville National guards, wrote to F. M. Higgins, chairman of the Clintonville Red Cross roll call.

Captain Schmidt, who is at Camp Beauregard, La., with other young men of this vicinity, wrote that "Red Cross services are extended to the men cheerfully, conscientiously and without charge."

He said the Red Cross has a large headquarters camp at Camp Beauregard, helps soldiers to arrange for relief of distress among their families, locates relatives, tries to get employment for members of soldiers' families, makes loans to soldiers when they must return to their homes because of sickness or death, helps to solve business problems and gives out information about government insurance, allowances and allotments.

Weatherman Turns to Turkey Leg for Solace as Rain Falls

The weatherman probably tore up some of his charts this morning and went off to his Thanksgiving dinner in a huff.

Tuesday he told his public that Thanksgiving would bring rain and snow in the Midwest, Wisconsin included. Then yesterday, as a bright sun hung in a blue sky, he changed his mind and said that today would be fair and nice in these parts.

He, like all of us, (unless weathermen are always up looking at the sky) awakened this morning to hear raindrops drumming on the roof and to see a thick and gloomy sky. You can imagine his frame of mind. You can imagine his public's frame of mind.

Despite the fact that probably he was downright disgusted with such things as high and low pressure areas and stuff like that, the weatherman daily must make his pronouncements. So he did again today. He said that tomorrow will be cloudy and warmer.

A number of people called the Post-Crescent today to ask about the weather because they were taking trips and wanted to know what was in store for them. The weatherman's statements (he said it will be cloudy with occasional showers in Wisconsin today—that is, he said this morning) were relayed to them. But they should be cautioned about what happened to the weatherman on Thanksgiving day, poor fellow.

The rain which started early this morning measured .44 of an inch in Appleton up to 9 o'clock this morning. The Wisconsin Michigan Power company reported. At 9:30 this morning, the mercury stood at 38. For the 24-hour period, the highest mark in the city was 44 at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon and the lowest was 28 at 1 o'clock this morning.

Rumania Next On Axis List

Im von Ribbentrop, the Nazi foreign minister, left last night. Observers viewed Hungary's formal enrollment within the axis as another step in a diplomatic drive toward the Mediterranean which, with the addition of other southern European nations—might open an axis highway all the way to the land frontiers of Greece and Turkey.

In this connection, it was noted that German troops already are in Rumanian soil and that informed sources have declared that the visit of King Boris of Bulgaria to Hitler last Sunday "served the new political order in Europe."

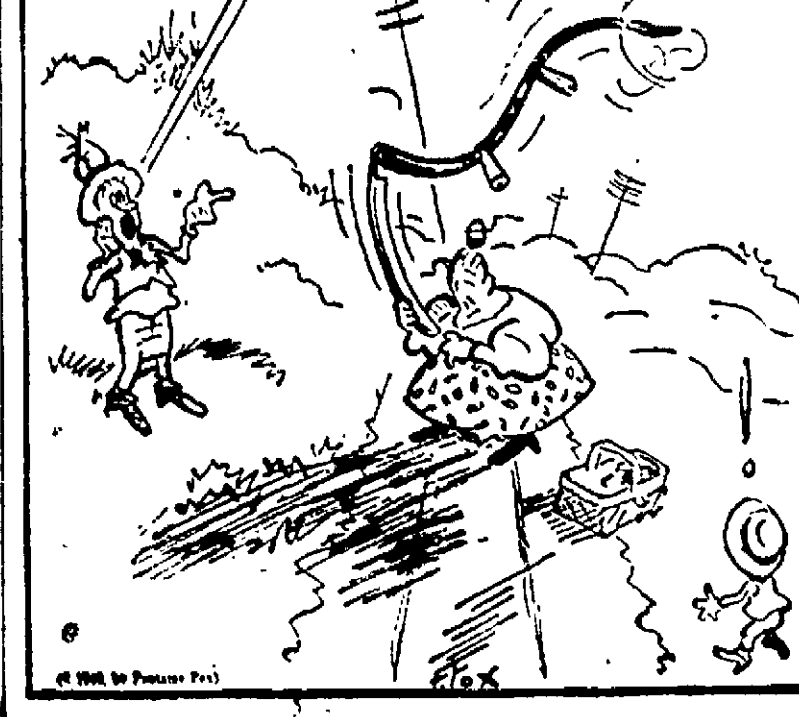

The possibility that little Slovakia, remnant of German-dissolved Czechoslovakia, also may sign up was indicated by the well-connected Dienst aus Deutschland commentary, which disclosed that Slovakia's premier, Prof. Bela Tuka, is expected shortly in Berlin.

(In Budapest also, Rumania, Slovakia and Bulgaria were looked

'Teacher's Pet' Is Abolished

Chicago College Plan Improves Class Situation

Chicago—Abolition of "teacher's pet" under the Chicago college plan has improved the relationship between teachers and students, according to Prof. Aaron J. Brumbaugh of the University of Chicago. Prof. Brumbaugh is dean of the college.

Under the Chicago college plan, ten years in operation, the student is free to attend class or absent himself at will. His examinations are prepared and scored by examiners not involved in teaching the courses. Hence there's no point in trying to become a "teacher's pet."

In fact, the student can "turn the tables" by freely criticizing the course of instruction without fear that some professor will "get even" by dealing out low grades.

"It is evident," Dean Brumbaugh said, "that the relationship between instructor and student is completely changed."

"No longer confronted with any occasion, let alone any necessity, to court or fear an instructor, the student is in a position to criticize freely the objectives, content, organization and methods of instruction."

Dean Brumbaugh said he viewed the plan as an "outstanding development toward forging mental preparedness for America's battle of brains with other nations."

"The basic purpose of education, as we have conceived it at the University of Chicago," he asserted, "is to build moral stamina and intelligence through broad, general education, that we may wisely control the use of our physical resources."

'Turkey Frowns on Axis' Is No Joke

Danville, Va. — (P) — Danville had a good laugh last evening when the evening paper came out with a banner headline reading, "Turkey Frowns on Axis Moves." The news editor insisted that no subtle Thanksgiving joke was intended.

The Greek command said the Italians bombed two cities in Epirus and Thessaly yesterday, killing a few persons, but that was all. The Greeks' own aviation was asserted to have bombed and strafed the retreating Italians and to have attacked the airbase at Argirocastro, deep in southern Albania.

British Royal Air Force planes which are aiding the Greeks reported that they alone had shot down 11 Italian planes in 24 hours.

It was reported in the Yugoslav border town of Bitolj that British planes also bombed Koritza while Greek field guns maintained a terrific fire into the town and that the Italians appeared ready to abandon the place.

The Greek spokesman also said the Italians were having difficulties with the conquered Albanians. A battalion of Albanians in the Italian central forces revolted and had to be disarmed, he asserted.

Ross Was Banished From the Stork Club but 'Tain't Right

BY WESTBROOK FEGLER

New York—Great indignation has been aroused in certain circles here by a writ of banishment against one of the leading journalists of New York. It appears that the Stork Club, the swank rendezvous of scions and scionesses of New York society, revoked the visa of Mr. Harold Ross, the editor of the New Yorker, in circumstances involving the freedom of the press. Mr. Ross not only confirms the report but adds that the issue is not personal but, in his belief, fundamental.

"I think it is fundamental," Mr. Ross states—"Some word they use in editorials."

Mr. Ross relates that on the evening in question he went to the Stork Club as the guest of a lady who was having a little brawl in honor of the engagement of two young friends and was just sitting there eating olives when the ministre de la presse of the Stork Club came up and said he might stay the evening through but could never come back.

Momentarily stunned, Mr. Ross' brain reeled as he speculated on the reason for this drastic action. He thought for one mad moment of panic that he might have forgotten to put on his pants, but a glance told him that this was not the cause. Then, with a trivial excuse, he left the table and hurried to the press headquarters, where the columnists regularly accredited to the night club sector receive their official press releases, to inquire the reason.

As the press officer on duty shook out a hand towel and brushed his collar for him Mr. Ross asked what it all meant. The words poured from him in a torrent.

"What's it all mean?" he gasped. "I mean what does it all mean?" "What do you mean what's it all mean?" the press officer evaded, giving Mr. Ross' shoes a flick. "You mean somebody's been mean?"

Convinced that he could obtain no satisfaction from this suave and wily functionary, Mr. Ross sought an interview with the prime minister of the Stork Club, Mr. Sherman Billingsley himself. But Mr. Billingsley had left for the evening. However, the ministre de la presse did grant him another interview, admitting that he was banished on account of something which had been printed in the New Yorker. It further appears that the offending item concerned the dean of the night club of the gents' room corps of journalists and that prime minister Billingsley had been put on the spot. The dean had threatened that if Mr. Ross were not banished he, the dean, would regard that failure as a deliberately unfriendly act and start a press campaign against the Stork Club—the way Adolf Hitler does to little nations.

Something Told Him The Dean Was There

Mr. Ross further states that as he entered the Stork that evening he noticed an incident which did not im-

Clapper Enjoys a Day When He Doesn't Have to Have an Opinion

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—I have often thought that one of my shortcomings as a newspaper columnist is that there are many days when I come down to the office without an opinion all white-hot and ready to burn its way through the typewriter and to the printed page.

Everyone, especially a newspaper columnist, is expected to have an opinion on any subject in the day's news. It may be a good opinion, of a poor one, but strong or weak, an opinion he must have.

I go out among my friends. They fix me with a sharp eye and demand to know what I think. What do I think about the aircraft strike? Will Britain hold out? What about Joe Kennedy? The Greeks? John L. Lewis? Everybody else has an opinion. You're a columnist. What do you think?

Then comes my feeble contribution. More than half the time I let them down. They have caught me cold without an opinion, with nothing but a vague, stammering, evasive reply. They look at me accusingly and think I am holding out on them, saving it up for a column. Half the time I let it go at that rather than make the shameful confession that I haven't any very definite opinion.

It must be great never to be in doubt, always to know what you think to know right off whether the great man whose name has been on every tongue is a saint or a skunk for what he said in a political speech the other night.

In writing a column one feels he is letting his readers down unless he has a hard-hitting opinion to serve up six days a week on the regular deadline. The writer who appears in print these days without clubbing his readers over the head with an opinion is put down as an odd fellow, with something missing, as if he had walked down the street without a necktie.

All of this has made me very unhappy, especially during the political campaign. It wasn't a crime in that campaign to have the most vicious, unwarranted, insupportable opinion, but it was a crime not to have an opinion. Better a poor one than none at all. Readers wrote in protesting. Why didn't I have the guts to say what I thought? That's what they wanted me to answer them. No beating around the bush that way, Clapper.

Seeks Solace in Old Book About Opinion

Someone kindly directed me to an old book of essays, first published thirty years ago by H. W. Fowler, and the one for my case was entitled, "If I Had Opinions."

I had thought all this business was of recent origin, but thirty years ago author Fowler found that it was hardly permitted to anyone to have no opinions at all. He observed that whenever he raised a question among his friends, someone was always certain to reel off a systematic lecture about it which showed a thorough consideration of the subject in all its bearings. He concluded that they gave all their leisure time to forming opinions and to organizing their thoughts neatly so that at a moment's notice they could put their hands on a set of opinions about any subject in earth or heaven.

Having no opinions of his own, he was reduced to borrowing them from others and found that it worked very well.

Not a bad idea. When one sets about to inform himself so that he may reach an intelligent opinion, he finds so much on both sides that it is obvious one side is not all wrong and the other all right. He becomes one of those colorless, uninteresting, and universally scorned "Yes—but" persons. That's all he gets for his trouble.

But if he skips all the study and

Weather, Early Nightfall are Factors in December Accidents

Weather conditions, lengthening hours of darkness, and the added hazard of holiday rush and celebration result in December being statistically the most hazardous month of the year, for motorists, the Outagamie County chapter of the American Red Cross warned today.

With the first broadsides of sleet and snow, the danger months for drivers begin, the Red Cross said. Contrary to the popular belief that the rush hours of morning and evening are the most dangerous periods of the day, the Red Cross points out that mile for mile there are nearly three times as many accidents between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning as there are between 8 and 9 o'clock in the morning.

On the basis of last year's record, about 3,500 persons in the nation will make page one news as victims of fatal automobile accidents.

Snow, sleet, rain and fog add to December's seasonal hazards, according to the Red Cross. It urges double caution while driving under these conditions—caution in the motorist handling his own car as well as keeping a vigilant eye on the other fellow. Highways will be more crowded than usual this winter due to transportation of military supplies and increased industrial load.

Holiday celebrants give rise to serious traffic problems, it was stressed. John Barleycorn makes a dangerous backseat driver. The motorist who thinks he is just as capable after a few drinks is nominating himself and his passengers as headline candidates if the law of averages runs its course.

New Flag Pole Dedicated At Seymour Schoolhouse

Seymour—The new flag pole recently purchased by the Seymour board of education was dedicated in front of the school building at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Principal E. T. Hawkins presided at the program; Assembly, invocation, the Rev. Milton Feldt; "The American's Creed" by Boy and Girl Scouts; singing of "America" with band accompaniment; address, "Our Flag," the Rev. H. A. Bernhardt; "God Bless America."

The new flag pole is 45 feet high and is of hot-galvanized rust-proof finish. At the top of the pole is a 54 inch ball gilded with gold paint. The new flag will be hoisted after the address by the Rev. H. A. Bernhardt.

The score of the non-conference basketball game Tuesday evening in the high school gymnasium, was seven tables were in play and lunch was served.

The Red Cross knitting class meets every Friday afternoon at the city hall. Wool and directions are furnished and expert instruction available.

Lots of Turkey For Guardsmen

One Pound for Each Of 11,000 Soldiers Thanksgiving Ration

Camp Beauregard, La. — (P) — The army today deployed some 11,000 pounds of turkey in a Thanksgiving offensive against homesickness and the hot Louisiana Indian summer.

The objective was a day of Thanksgiving which 11,000 citizen soldiers of the national guard from wintry Wisconsin and Michigan could recognize even as they perspired under rustling pines in their shirt sleeves.

Orders went out for a full holiday, and an increase of the $3.15 cents per man per day food allowance to something over 60 cents per man to cover one pound of turkey for all who wanted it. The holiday applied to all except the cooks, unfortunate kitchen police and necessary guards.

Interdenominational church services were conducted preceding the noonday dinner.

Pumpkin pie, no staple in Louisiana, appeared on many company menus, vying with the local delicacy, pecan pie, which the majority of the soldiers had never heard about. There was, of course, cranberry sauce, celery and sweet potatoes.

Most envied of the guard units, which arrived a month ago, was Company I of the 126th infantry, whose mess sergeant and cook came straight from the kitchens of two of Michigan's biggest hotels.

In the afternoon, those guardsmen remembering jammed stadiums and snow in the air as part of Thanksgiving, turned toward a high school football game in nearby Alexandria.

Former Gov. Lowden Returns to His Home

Chicago — (P) — Former Governor Frank O. Lowden quit St. Luke's hospital yesterday after recuperating from a minor operation performed Oct. 30. He planned to observe Thanksgiving at his Sinissippi farm near Oregon.

Ross Was Banished From the Stork Club but 'Tain't Right

BY WESTBROOK FEGLER

New York—Great indignation has been aroused in certain circles here by a writ of banishment against one of the leading journalists of New York. It appears that the Stork Club, the swank rendezvous of scions and scionesses of New York society, revoked the visa of Mr. Harold Ross, the editor of the New Yorker, in circumstances involving the freedom of the press. Mr. Ross not only confirms the report but adds that the issue is not personal but, in his belief, fundamental.

"I think it is fundamental," Mr. Ross states—"Some word they use in editorials."

Mr. Ross relates that on the evening in question he went to the Stork Club as the guest of a lady who was having a little brawl in honor of the engagement of two young friends and was just sitting there eating olives when the ministre de la presse of the Stork Club came up and said he might stay the evening through but could never come back.

Momentarily stunned, Mr. Ross' brain reeled as he speculated on the reason for this drastic action. He thought for one mad moment of panic that he might have forgotten to put on his pants, but a glance told him that this was not the cause. Then, with a trivial excuse, he left the table and hurried to the press headquarters, where the columnists regularly accredited to the night club sector receive their official press releases, to inquire the reason.

As the press officer on duty shook out a hand towel and brushed his collar for him Mr. Ross asked what it all meant. The words poured from him in a torrent.

"What's it all mean?" he gasped. "I mean what does it all mean?" "What do you mean what's it all mean?" the press officer evaded, giving Mr. Ross' shoes a flick. "You mean somebody's been mean?"

press him at the time but became significant later.

Teacher's Pet Is Abolished

Chicago College Plan Improves Class Situation

Chicago—Abolition of "teacher's pet" under the Chicago college plan has improved the relationship between teachers and students, according to Prof. Aaron J. Brumbaugh of the University of Chicago. Prof. Brumbaugh is dean of the college.

Under the Chicago college plan, ten years in operation, the student is free to attend class or absent himself at will. His examinations are prepared and scored by examiners not involved in teaching the courses. Hence there's no point in trying to become a "teacher's pet."

In fact, the student can "turn the tables" by freely criticizing the course of instruction without fear that some professor will "get even" by dealing out low grades.

"It is evident," Dean Brumbaugh said, "that the relationship between instructor and student is completely changed."

"No longer confronted with any occasion, let alone any necessity, to court or fear an instructor, the student is in a position to criticize freely the objectives, content, organization and methods of instruction."

Dean Brumbaugh said he viewed the plan as an "outstanding development toward forging mental preparedness for America's battle of brains with other nations."

"The basic purpose of education, as we have conceived it at the University of Chicago," he asserted, "is to build moral stamina and intelligence through broad, general education, that we may wisely control the use of our physical resources."

'Turkey Frowns on Axis' Is No Joke

Danville, Va. — (P) — Danville had a good laugh last evening when the evening paper came out with a banner headline reading, "Turkey Frowns on Axis Moves." The news editor insisted that no subtle Thanksgiving joke was intended.

The Greek command said the Italians bombed two cities in Epirus and Thessaly yesterday, killing a few persons, but that was all. The Greeks' own aviation was asserted to have bombed and strafed the retreating Italians and to have attacked the airbase at Argirocastro, deep in southern Albania.

British Royal Air Force planes which are aiding the Greeks reported that they alone had shot down 11 Italian planes in 24 hours.

It was reported in the Yugoslav border town of Bitolj that British planes also bombed Koritza while Greek field guns maintained a terrific fire into the town and that the Italians appeared ready to abandon the place.

The Greek spokesman also said the Italians were having difficulties with the conquered Albanians. A battalion of Albanians in the Italian central forces revolted and had to be disarmed, he asserted.
